A Negro Named to Top Post

Robert Weaver Administrator Of the HHFA

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President-elect John F. Kennedy Saturday named a Negro civil rights crusader to the top U.S. housing post and a Harvard dean to be White House assistant on national security affairs.

One appointment—that of Robert C. Weaver of New York—may become a matter of controversy. The other—of Republican McGeorge Bundy—already is. Gov. Foster Furcolo of Kennedy's home state of Massachusetts assailed it in advance as incredible.

Weaver, chairman of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and an advocate of racially desegregated housing, was selected to be administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency. This would be the highest governmental executive position ever held by a Negro.

Weaver said he will resign the NAACP post when he gets his new job.

Kennedy bristled a bit at a question as to how Southern Democrats in Congress might react.

With Weaver by his side at a news conference, Kennedy said: "Well, I have selected a man who I think can do the job, and I am hopeful that that will be the judgment of all Americans."

Weaver is a nationally known housing expert. He is vice president of the New York City Housing and Redevelopment Board. He is 53 and has a doctor's degree from Harvard.

Bundy, 41, is dean of the Harvard faculty of arts and sciences. He opposed Furcolo's election as governor in 1958.

Advance word that Bundy was expected to get the White House national security post drew from Furcolo a statement that: "It is completely incredible that President-elect Kennedy would name a person so completely unqualified as McGeorge Bundy. I am getting in touch with the president-elect because I do not believe it is possible he would even consider a person so lacking in qualification for any position of trust and confidence as Bundy."

Kennedy made another appointment Saturday that stirred up no immediate prospects of a fuss. He selected Boileau Jones, vice president and administrator of health services at Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., to be assistant secretary of health, education and welfare.

Kennedy headquarters described Jones, 47, as "a nationally renowned figure in the field of health and medicine." He is a native Georgian. Last year he was chairman of a panel which studied the adequacy of government programs for medical research and reported to the Senate Appropriations Committee.

The Kennedy news conference revolved largely around names and jobs. Kennedy's efforts to find out all the key men he will need in order to take full control of the government after his inauguration Jan. 20.

Kennedy disclosed that he had offered a position to his overnight guest, Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., but he added it was not that of assistant secretary of the navy—a post the late President Roosevelt occupied in World War I.

Kennedy said Roosevelt "has some obligations" and they are going to confer about the offer again in New York in a week.

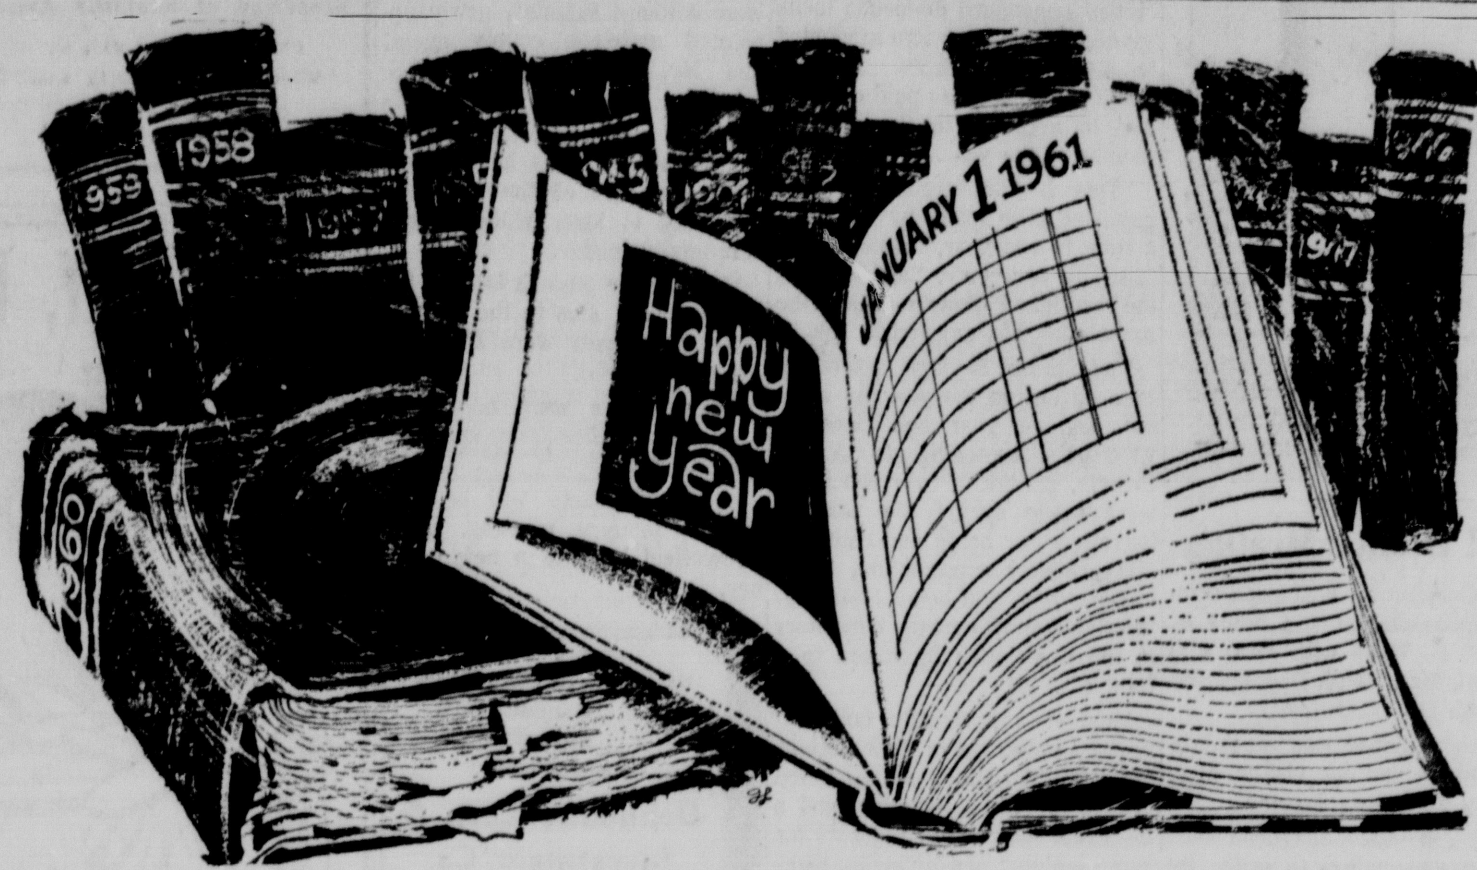

Nor was Kennedy saying whether Gov. S. Ernest Vandiver of Georgia might wind up as secretary of the army or in some other position in the new administration. The governor has been reported reliably to be in the running for civilian head of the Army.

Man Is Run Over By Tractor Wagon

Cletus Miller, 39, Florence, is in serious condition at the Bothwell Hospital after reportedly being run over by a vehicle pulled by a tractor. Miller, according to reports, fell from the tractor and under the wheels of the wagon the tractor was pulling.

He was brought to Bothwell Hospital and treated by Dr. Tom Hopkins. Miller suffered multiple lacerations of the scalp, contusions of the left shoulder, upper left chest and both knees.

The accident occurred Saturday morning, but the exact location was not determined.

Sedalia Centennial Top Local Story For 1960; School Bond Issue Second

Sedalia's top story for 1960 began early in the year, but its full impact was not felt until later in the year.

Considered the top story of the year was the Sedalia Centennial celebration, which began on New Year's Day, when some of the harder Sedalians threw away their razors and started growing beards. The story ended in October when most of the beards disappeared.

In the meantime, Sedalians ragtimed to the tune of Bob Darch's honky-tonk piano, paraded in the biggest formation ever witnessed in the 100-year-old city, wore century-old clothes, enjoyed a visit by Jack Oakie, square danced for a week and in general "knocked themselves out" by the end of Centennial Week, Oct. 22.

The birth and growth of Sedalia was told in story and picture in the biggest newspaper (by number of pages) ever published in the city—the Centennial Edition of the Sedalia Democrat-Capital.

Heart Fund Drive Plans In the Mill

Mrs. William Atkinson, Heart Fund Chairman of Pettis County, today announced the organization for conducting this year's drive throughout the county was nearly complete.

Serving as county level chairmen are: County Rural Chairman, Mrs. John Silsby, Route 4, Sedalia; County Rural co-chairman, Mr. M. L. Edwards, 120 East Broadway; and County School Chairman, Mrs. Jack Blackwell, 501 South Grand. Mr. Leon Hall, 1805 East Sixth, has been appointed County Treasurer.

Community Chairmen appointed to date are: Mr. Paul Vannatta, Hughesville; Miss Mary Elizabeth Tevebaugh, Houstonia; Mrs. Clarence Purchase, Green Ridge; Mrs. Joe Vets, Smithton; Mrs. Tobe Hardin, LaMonte; and Dr. Spencer Hopkins, Sedalia.

Mrs. Atkinson emphasized the high point of the February Heart Fund campaign would be Heart Sunday, Feb. 26, when scores of volunteers will conduct a door-to-door collection.

"We Heart Fund leaders are confident this year's campaign will be the most successful ever conducted," continued Mrs. Atkinson. "We say this, knowing that nearly every family has someone close who has a heart or circulatory disease problem. People are aware of how heart research, supported by their contributions in the past, is helping those affected by heart diseases."

The Heart Fund Chairman pointed out that, "Expanded research programs will bring us the answers needed to conquer mankind's greatest health problem. A contribution to the Heart Fund is not a gift, but an investment in our own health and the health of those we love."

Long Picks Springfield Man as Staff Member

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., Saturday announced appointment of S. W. (Bill) Brown Jr., Springfield, Mo., as a member of his Washington staff.

Brown is an older brother of Rep. Charlie Brown, D-Mo., defeated for re-election last November in Missouri's 7th District.

Long's announcement said Bill Brown has been public relations and advertising consultant for various Springfield firms and organizations. Brown is married and father of two children. His family will join him here.

When the final accounting date arrived a hefty sum of $14,000 was added to the City coffers, earmarked for local youth activities.

Next in line of importance, as considered by the Democrat-Capital, was the school bond election. On Jan. 13 Superintendent Thomas J. Norris tossed the school improvement problem into the laps of the Board of Education. On Jan. 28, a Citizens Committee for Better Schools, headed by William A. Schein, was organized to promote the $1,665,000 bond issue.

On May 3, after an aggressive campaign, the school bond issue was approved by Sedalia voters in a special election, and soon afterward the bonds were offered and sold. In the meantime the architect had been busy and plans

At Stroke of New Year

Three New Officials Into County Offices

At the stroke of midnight Saturday, ending the old year and opening the new, three new Pettis County officials took over their duties, while four others continue in office for another term. Probably the most affected office was that of the Sheriff when Emmett Fairfax took over the duties of that office and began a county patrol.

All county officials had previously been sworn into office, although their terms did not begin until the midnight hour.

Sheriff Fairfax was sworn in by Circuit Clerk Bryan Howe, several days ago, but on Saturday his newly appointed deputies took the oath of office. They are: Jack Couts, chief deputy; E. J. Thomas, chief clerk; Virgil Morris, jailer; and Mrs. Virgil Morris, matron.

Prosecuting Attorney J. R. Fritz was sworn in along with other county officials by County Clerk James Green. Fritz announced Mrs. J. M. Blue, who has served as stenographer in the Prosecuting Office under Harold Barrick would remain in that position.

Associate Judges Earl Birdsong and C. M. Purchase, to the County Court, took the new oath for another two-year term.

Damage Suit Is Filed In Circuit Court

A petition seeking damages totaling $13,000 as a result of an automobile accident at Broadway and Massachusetts Dec. 18 was filed in Circuit Court Saturday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Fitzgerald, 1900 East 19th, and son, Raymond, passengers in a car being driven south on Massachusetts by Fitzgerald at the time of the accident, named Kenneth Ray McCracken, driver of an ambulance owned by Carl Parker, Springfield, as the defendant. McCracken was driving the ambulance east on Broadway when it collided with the Fitzgerald machine at the intersection.

The plaintiffs charged McCracken was operating the ambulance in a careless, reckless and negligent manner.

Fitzgerald asks $5,000 damages for injuries sustained in the mishap. His wife, Lydia, asks $7,500 damages, and their son, Raymond, is asking $500 punitive damages.

George H. Miller is attorney for the plaintiffs.

Nehru Asks Farmers Cast Away Old Plows

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru has appealed to Indian farmers to cast away their antiquated plows because—in the words of Benjamin Franklin—"Man is a toolmaking animal." Nehru told a community development conference India must "get out of the rut of the cow-Jungles."

Jan. 28, a Citizens Committee for Better Schools, headed by William A. Schein, was organized to promote the $1,665,000 bond issue.

On May 3, after an aggressive campaign, the school bond issue was approved by Sedalia voters in a special election, and soon afterward the bonds were offered and sold. In the meantime the architect had been busy and plans for the beginning of the school improvement program were submitted and approved. Actual construction began soon after the election.

The program includes a new elementary school to be called "Heber U. Hunt" at Seventh and Warren; a new gymnasium classroom addition to Smith-Cotton High School; new rooms in the old Smith-Cotton Building; an auditorium-gymnasium-cafeteria for Jefferson School; remodeling the basement and an addition to make a cafeteria for Mark-Twain School and an addition for gymnasium for Whittier School.

The general election in November was perhaps the third biggest story of the year—locally. Interest ran high in the race for sheriff, congressman from the 11th District, for state representative and for President of the United States. In a special election the same day a proposal to issue bonds for a new County jail almost passed.

Census takers under the supervision of Mrs. Ruth Seifert checked the City last spring, and found that the city had not grown as fast as it was thought, but for the first time in 40 years, the city registered an increase in population. On-the-street estimates placed the population at more than 30,000, but the actual figures showed only a little more than 23,000. This was an increase of about 3,000 in ten years. This was considered the fourth largest story.

One of the first big stories, which ended up fifth in consideration was the drawing of a Grand Jury, specifically to investigate the 12-Mile Road District, with Paul Hedderich as foreman. The jury in its final report said it found the District had been operated loosely, but no indictments were ordered. An election was held and the 12-Mile Road District was retained.

In one of its duties required under state law, the Grand Jury investigated the County jail, and like other Grand Juries, found conditions "deplorable." The jury members personally recommended a campaign to pass a bond issue to build the jail. It was defeated in the November general election.

Sixth in line of interest was the race for party nomination as candidate for Pettis County Sheriff in the spring primary. Twelve

2 Wheels of Speeding Train Derail Selves

NEWTON, Kan. (AP)—Two wheels of a passenger car on the Super Chief went off the track at 90 mph near Abbyville Saturday. The wheels rerailed themselves at a switchpoint about three-fourth of a mile away.

No one was hurt and passengers barely were aware of the difficulty until conductor L. H. Arthur stopped the train.

The wheels were part of a set of eight at the rear of the ninth car of the 12-car train, the Santa Fe Railroad said. The car was cut out of the train at Dodge City because some of the wheel flanges were nicked.

The all-sleeper train was en route from Chicago to Los Angeles.

West Studies Laos Claim Of Invasion

Capital of North Viet Nam Denies Staging Invasion

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Western military experts Saturday gave careful study to the Laotian government's claim of an invasion by soldiers of Communist North Viet Nam. The military men wondered whether it could be one of many sallies across the ill-defined border.

Radio Hanoi, in the capital of neighboring North Viet Nam, denied staging any invasion, first reported in a communique by the pro-Western government of premier Prince Boun Oum Friday night.

The communique said five viet-minh battalions were attacking Nonget on the border between this Southeast Asian kingdom and its Communist neighbor.

Two other Vietminh battalions were reported moving about 30 miles up the road toward Ban Ban, on the way to the provincial capital of Xiengkhouang.

The government also reported that a wounded Vietminh soldier was captured and brought to Vientiane.

"Laos will fight with all the forces at our disposal against this foreign aggression," said the communique. "In case the aggression does not cease, however, Laos reserves the right to appeal to friendly countries to defend the right of its national territory."

One of these friendly countries presumably would be the United States, which has supported Laos with $300 million in military and economic aid during its six-year fight to wipe out pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels supplied from North Viet Nam.

In Washington, President Eisenhower summoned military, diplomatic and intelligence advisers for a report. U. S. officials said they had no clear indication of the Communists' intentions.

Military men and diplomats in other Allied capitals inclined toward skepticism, saying they had no information to confirm the reported invasion. Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty declined to say whether Washington had received verification. Reports circulated in Washington diplomatic circles that the Vietminh troops were operating with the support of Soviet planes.

Soviet aircraft have been dropping supplies to remnants of the pro-Communist force that was driven out of Vientiane in mid-December by Boun Oum's forces after four months of civil strife. Under paratrooper Capt. Kong Le, the leftists have regrouped about 60 miles north of Vientiane. The United States has accused Moscow of interfering in the affairs of Laos. Washington supports Boun Oum.

Nonget is located across the jungles about 150 miles northeast of Vientiane. Road and telegraphic connections are poor.

The Nonget area has been the scene of frequent border sallies by Communist troops.

First Baptist Will Host A State Meet

Convention Set Here Jan. 9-11; Expect 1300-1500

Between 1300 and 1500 Baptists will converge on Sedalia next weekend to attend a convention here Monday through Wednesday, Jan. 9-11, to be held at the First Baptist Church, 8th and Lamine, it was announced today by Rev. J. R. Wallace, pastor.

Rev. Wallace based the estimated attendance figure on the number of persons attending a similar convention last year in Springfield, Mo. where about 1500 were in attendance.

Four noted pastors are on the three-day program. They are: Dr. C. E. Autry, chairman of the Evangelical Southern Baptist Conference; Dr. James L. Sullivan, executive secretary board of the Southern Baptist Convention; Dr. Eugene Pratt, secretary of Evangelical Baptist Conference; and Dr. Earl Harding, executive secretary of the Missouri Baptist Convention.

The program will open Monday, Jan. 9, at 7 p.m. and continue until noon Wednesday, Jan. 11.

Rev. Wallace said many Southern Baptist leaders will be attending the convention which is open to the public. He said the First Baptist Church would accommodate about 1300 people.

The main subject on the agenda is "Building an Evangelical Church."

Accommodation reservations from state-wide residents planning to attend the convention have been flowing in steadily. Rev. Wallace said, and most of the hotels and hotels have been filled on these dates. The pastor said many of those in attendance will be staying in homes of members of various congregations in the city.

The gathering is the annual state convention.

Eyesight Restored 35 Years After Accident

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—Manuel Alves was blinded by a firecracker at age 9. This year—35 years later—a Brazilian doctor heard of a new Japanese technique for curing him by surgery. Japanese doctors wrote him about the method and their letters were laboriously translated from Japanese to Portuguese. The doctor, who asked that his name be withheld, performed the operation and restored Alves' sight.

Schools, Churches, Library

1961 Will See Completion Of Construction Projects

1961 will be a red letter year for Sedalia's schools, Churches and industries, as far as the use of new facilities is concerned. Evidence of this are the various construction projects now in progress around the city scheduled for completion in the near future.

Schools, especially, will be better off as the year progresses and work is completed on new and added facilities.

Ready to use after the holiday vacation is a new $10,823 science laboratory in the third floor of the Smith-Cotton high school building. Made possible through a grant of funds from the National Defense Education Act and local school funds on a dollar matching basis, the new lab will update old facilities built 36 years ago in 1924.

The new lab will be used in addition to old facilities and includes: a lecture area in front of the lab, five student lab tables accommodating four persons, electric power outlets at each table, sinks and drains, and running water and gas outlets. Added features are a chemical dilution system which weakens all solutions to a safe level before they are drained into the regular sewer system, and an exhaust system which will draw away all offensive odors from classroom experiments.

Three Sedalia elementary schools will gain the use of new cafeteria facilities in 1961.

At Mark Twain a new 32x47 feet addition will supplement old facilities and may be in use shortly after holiday vacation, according to school principal, J. W. Delph. Included in the construction is the renovation of the old 23x32 feet area and its kitchen facilities. The addition joins the school on the north side and will eliminate the necessity of some of the children eating in hallways, as has been the custom for years. A different tray-type service will give more space in the cafeteria for children to eat and reduce the present crowded condition. The new addition contains two exits which in addition to one in the old cafeteria will give three exits.

Whittier school will be into a new cafeteria about the middle of January, school officials say. The new addition extends back from the present auditorium about 14 feet and will be used for kitchen facilities. Eating will be done in the auditorium.

Jefferson school will also have a new cafeteria, as well as an auditorium and gymnasium, ready for use by the start of school next fall, according to school officials. The steel work is currently going up on the structure.

Other school projects slated are

Not to Aid Laos Rebels With Arms

Reminder That US Required by Treaty To Halt Aggression

WASHINGTON (AP)—In a statement approved by President Eisenhower, the United States sharply warned Red China and North Viet Nam Saturday night against armed intervention in support of Communist rebels in Laos.

The warning carried a solemn reminder to the Communist powers—that the wording was broad enough to include the Soviet Union—that the United States is committed by treaty to help meet "the common danger" in event of aggression in Southeast Asia.

Issuance of the warning by the State Department followed a midday meeting at the White House where Eisenhower consulted with his top military, diplomatic and intelligence advisers on the developing Laotian crisis.

The President is understood to have ordered that precise and detailed information be provided him immediately on the nationality, size and apparent intentions of forces reported to have entered northern Laos from Communist North Viet Nam.

President-elect John F. Kennedy was kept informed of the developing situation, officials here reported, through Dean Rusk, his secretary of state-designate. Rusk, in New York for the New Year weekend, was in frequent touch with the State Department Saturday.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, who is in South Carolina for the holiday, was given reports by Acting Secretary Livingston T. Merchant by telephone. Herter is due back here Sunday afternoon.

State Department press officer Joseph Reap, who issued the Eisenhower-approved statement late Saturday, was asked whether the United States understood that the invading force was substantial in size or just a handful of men.

"It is much more than a handful," Reap said.

Reap indicated that a prompt

Ex-Convict's Body Found By Hunter

ARNOLD, Mo. (AP)—The body of ex-convict Oswald Edgar (Chick) Kuehn, 53, with four bullet wounds in the head, was found in the woods near this Jefferson county community Saturday by a St. Louis rabbit hunter.

County Coroner James Rehm said it was believed Kuehn was murdered. He apparently was shot four times in the face as he lay on his back. The stab wounds were in the back of the head and he had been beaten. There was nothing to indicate Kuehn had been shot elsewhere, officers said.

The body was found by Paul E. Gasby, 35, of St. Louis, about 150 yards south of the Ten Brook Road, just south of the Meramec River.

Rehm estimated the man had been dead 36 hours or longer. He planned an autopsy.

Rehm said the body was fully clothed. No weapon was found. Officials said Kuehn worked in a tavern at nearby Tenbrook, Mo., but had not been seen since Dec. 20. His car is missing.

Lt. V. E. Maxey of the Missouri Highway Patrol said Kuehn had been beaten savagely, apparently with a pistol. He said the grip of one pistol and part of the grip of another pistol were found near the body.

Someone had ground his heel into the victim's face.

The highway patrol said Kuehn had been arrested in the St. Louis area suspected of rape and child molestation. He also was arrested Sept. 9 in the Arnold area on suspicion of child molestation, but the case was not prosecuted on the condition that he leave the county.

Walter Peeble Finds Much He Didn't Do In Year 1960

By HAL BOYLE

YOURVILLE, U.S.A. (AP)—It was the end of another year.

As usual Wilbur Peeble, America's most average husband, felt pretty blue. Totting up the year he felt he hadn't done much.

"Lemme see," he said to himself. "My forehead got bigger, but my scalp got smaller. Hair today, gone tomorrow."

"I gained 20 pounds so there is more to me. There is the same amount of free air in the world, but I got to breathe faster to get my share. Fat people have to take deep breaths."

"Twice I told the boss how to improve the firm—so there went the possibility of any raise in pay."

"I had 10 fights with my wife, Trellis Mae, and the record shows at the best one draw and nine losses."

"On the other hand, I did stay out of jail."

Wilbur's eye happened at that moment to fall on a newspaper story listing the major news events of 1960.

"Well, lemme see what I didn't do to confuse history," he told himself.

"I didn't beat Dick Nixon for the presidency, so I don't have to live in the White House."

"I didn't fly the U2 plane over Russia."

"I didn't collapse the summit conference."

"I didn't trouble the Congo."

"I didn't collide two airplanes over New York City."

"I didn't wear Fidel Castro's beard."

"I wasn't Nikita Khrushchev, and I didn't take off my shoe and pound it on a desk at the United Nations."

"I didn't fail to orbit into space, because I never set out to."

"I didn't ruin President Eisenhower's trip to Japan. I couldn't. I wasn't even there."

"I wasn't either segregated or integrated in a New Orleans school. At my age disintegration is all I have to worry about. Why don't they call out the police or fly an airborne battalion to protect middle-aged people from disintegration?"

As he reviewed his stern non-participation in the history-making events of 1960, Wilbur felt his own sense of personal guilt wash away. In his own mind he began to emerge as a quiet hero, one bent by time but unbroken.

Just then Trellis Mae entered the room and destroyed the rainbow of his reverie.

"Why are you just sitting there staring into space with that self-satisfied smirk on your face?" she demanded. "You could at least get up and take out the garbage—and end 1960 with your first good deed."

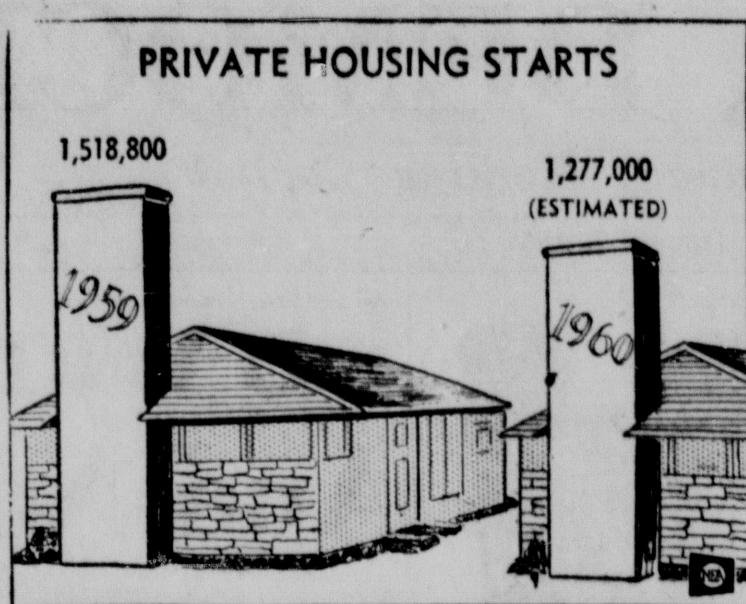

Wilbur refused to come down from his new-won cloud of self-approval.

"Let the garbage of our day take care of itself," he said grandly. "I am an innocent bystander—and I choose to remain one."

As his puzzled wife looked on, Wilbur stretched himself out on the sofa for a nap.

"Wake me when it's 1961, Trellis Mae," he said, nuzzling the pillow. "This may be the last year for good sleeping."

First State Announces '60 Dividends

The First State Savings Association announced dividends to its savers for the year 1960 amounted to a total of 238,696. Of this amount $125,435 was paid or credited to accounts in the last six months of the year.

"This is the largest dividend payment ever made by the association in one year," stated J. E. Mitchell, secretary, "and reflects the continued growth which the association has enjoyed in 1960."

First State Savings assets increased during the year by $859,000, and at year end stood at 7,750,000. According to A. L. Pringle, president, over 500 loans were made during the year to borrowers for home and commercial property construction, home improvement and home financing. The number of savings depositors in the association increased to a total of 3,000.

Mitchell and Pringle both expressed optimism in their outlook for 1961. "We anticipate continued growth for the association, and a moderate increase in requests for home building and financing loans in the early months of the year and a continuing increase as the year progresses. We expect 1961 to rank high locally and nationally in home starts and completions."

Long Purpose Arms Set-up Is a Dream of Military Men

Automation Is the Key To New Systems

Editor's Note—Sometime in the 1970s, the U.S. Navy hopes to put into operation a fully automatic weapons system which will make entire fleets of ships, planes and submarines maneuver and fight as a single unit. Here is an exclusive report on a dream scheme which may go to sea within a decade.

By BEM PRICE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The creation of an all-purpose weapons system has long been the dream of military men.

The U. S. Navy's research section, known as "Operations 73," has been working on precisely such a system since early 1958. Upon completion sometime in the late 60s, the Navy hopes to have an incredibly complex, fully automated system which can be made operational some time after 1970.

When developed, the navy expects it to:

1. Knock down anything that flies, whether a low, slow torpedo plane or an ultrasonic missile.
2. Destroy enemy shipping on or below the surface.
3. Bombard enemy shore installations.

Basically, the program calls for the integration of electronic computers, aircraft, ships, missiles, radar and the technology of automation into a single system.

Until now this Navy brainchild has been almost totally unpublicized. This is the first attempt at a comprehensive report on what is known as the Typhon-Eagle system.

The name Typhon derives from a fierce, legendary Greek monster with 100 heads.

When the system is fully installed in the fleet, it will have a built-in ability to analyze the type of enemy attack and to select and launch the specific missile, or missiles, required to defeat it.

Further, the Navy says, the system will be so refined that a simultaneous mass attack by aircraft and missiles can be met selectively; that is, certain missiles will be directed automatically against aircraft and others against missiles.

It will even be effective, the Navy believes, against the greatest of all threats to a moving fleet — the air-launched missile, either guided or ballistic.

A Navy briefing officer, who asked for anonymity, put the Navy's problem this way:

"The Soviets have a historical propensity for mass attack. It is not likely that they will attack with a handful of erudite missiles. They will attack with every weapon they have—the highest category of air-launched ballistic missiles, high-performance ground-based ballistic missiles and aircraft. Therefore the fleet must be able to withstand a mass assault."

In addition, the briefing officer said, "We must be able to fire at short range—the last point at which you can kill him before he kills you."

Asked if this meant the ability to evaluate the potential destructiveness of a nuclear warhead directed against the fleet, that is, the bursting radius of the warhead, the officer replied, "Yes."

Now this is no dream scheme. The Navy says laboratory experiments have demonstrated that the system is practical.

In fact, contracts totaling over $100 million have already been let for development of prototype missiles and radar. Some of the components of the system already exist and are in fleet operation.

The brains of the Typhon-Eagle system will be electronic computers mounted in aircraft and ships. The eyes will be a radar system now being developed by Westinghouse Electric Corp.

The striking power will consist of three types of missiles, two of which will be solid-fueled while the third will be a ramjet. The ramjet and one of the shorter range solid-fuel missiles will be ship launched, the third will be air launched.

The entire system will be completely automated. "We will be able to empty an entire ship of its missile load," said the briefing officer, "without the lifting of a human hand." Missiles will also be launched automatically from aircraft.

All of the far-flung ships and aircraft will be tied together through the electronic computers by a powerful single-band radio wave.

Thus, ships and planes scattered over hundreds of square miles of ocean will be able to function as if they were all one unit.

These computers, airborne and aboard ship, will also be connected to underwater detection devices.

The console-type computers some of which are already in fleet operation, will be able to unfold a continuous picture of the location of all ships, aircraft and missiles, both friendly and enemy.

Into the memory cells of these computers, which have a reaction time measured in the millionths of a second, will be fed all known information on the capabilities of both enemy and friendly weapons. Should an attack occur, the computers will dish up a series of recommended courses of action for the commanding officer, including what weapons to use.

Once the commanding officer makes a decision, the rest is automatic. Missiles will be fired and the launchers re-loaded. The ships and planes will automatically undertake a series of evasive actions.

The whole complicated system may be closer to reality than the Navy cares to admit.

Douglas Aircraft Corp., Santa Monica, Calif., is working on an airplane, the Missileer, to carry the Eagle airborne missile.

The Missileer, according to Navy specifications, will be a relatively slow plane with long range. The required speed will be built into the Eagle missile itself.

An airborne computer system, geared to present-day weapons, is already flying aboard the Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corporation's plane known as the "Hawkeye."

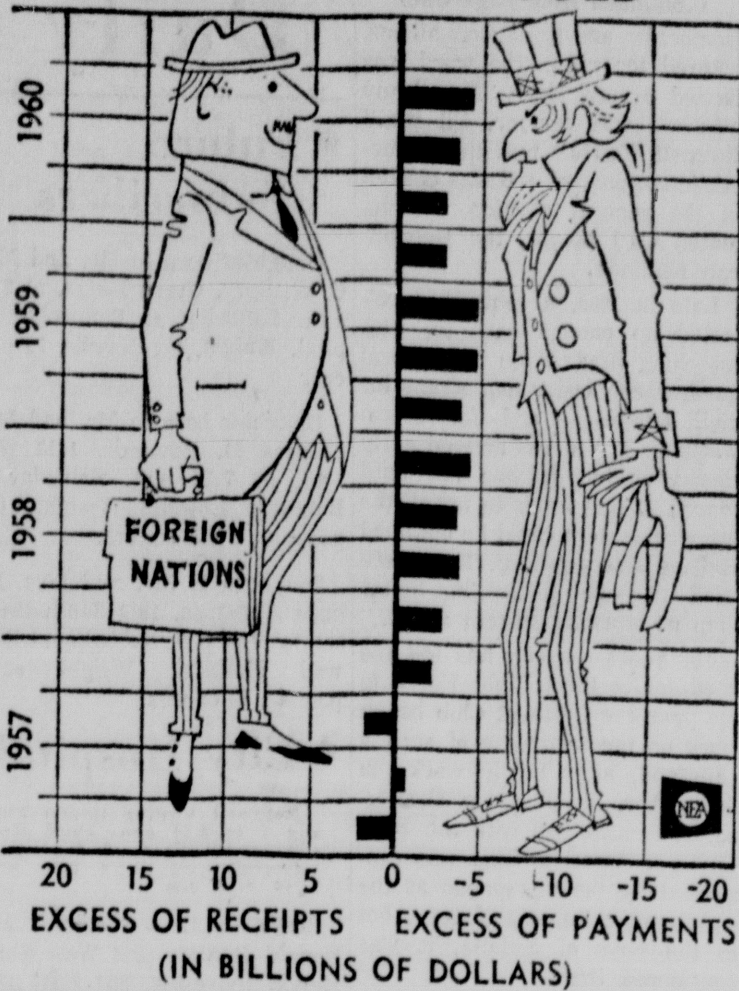

Similar computers went into service with the fleet last year. The major hitch appears to be development of a highly refined radar system. Even so, the Navy says such a radar is "within the state of the art."

The briefing officer said the Navy really began thinking about an all-purpose weapon system back in 1945 which the fleet was being attacked by scores of Japanese suicide planes—essentially guided missiles—off Okinawa.

At the time, however, and for a good many years thereafter, such a weapons system was technically impossible. Now it is possible, the officer said.

"It is essential," he continued, "that we control the seas—and by

One thing is clear—the Navy believes as of now that the Typhon-Eagle system will enable it to control the seas.

control I mean the ability to live off an enemy's coast at will. To do this we must control the seas—underwater, surface, air."

The briefing officer declined to discuss the use of the system in anti-submarine warfare. There have been a number of reports, step would be consultation at Bangkok, Thailand, of the permanent council of the eight-nation Southeast Asia Treaty Organization. The United States is a member of this six-year-old alliance, formed to oppose Red subversion and aggression in Southeast Asia.

Reap said he would be very much surprised if the council "did not meet on this new development very quickly."

Of the forces which reportedly have moved into Laos, he said, "We are satisfied these are non-Lao forces presumably coming from North Viet Nam."

In the formal statement, the State Department said: "The department is following with close attention the grave situation in Laos, including in particular reports of intervention from the outside. It is also consulting with Allied governments."

"Mindful of its obligations under the SEATO treaty, the U. S. government would take the most serious view of any intervention in Laos by the Chinese Communists or Vietnamese armed forces or others in support of the Communist Pathet Lao who are in rebellion against the royal Lao government."

Eisenhower's military and diplomatic advisers told him that Communist forces struck into northern Laos from Communist North Viet Nam, reportedly with air support from Soviet-made planes.

In a 75-minute meeting at the White House, Eisenhower is understood to have ordered the State and Defense departments and the Central Intelligence Agency to get all available information together at the earliest possible moment for an assessment of the size and purpose of the Red invasion and a decision — which could come Sunday — on possible U.S. counteraction.

The United States has particularly determined to nail down, it is understood, the identification of troop units which have struck against the American-supported government of Premier Boun Oum.

This is necessary for any appeal to the U.N. Security Council, a definite possibility, for action through the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization in conjunction with U.S. allies.

It would be necessary to show that the invaders were not simply Lao units returning from training in North Viet Nam or Red China. The conviction of top U.S. officials is said to be that they are North Vietnamese forces.

Eisenhower, who has only 20 days remaining of his eight years in the White House, was described by other administration officials as determined to take whatever action is required to prevent a Communist takeover in Laos.

He will keep President-elect John F. Kennedy fully informed of the situation and of his decisions, it was said.

The most delicate element in consideration of possible strong U. S. counteraction, authorities said, is not in the imminent end of Eisenhower's administration but in a lack of enthusiastic support from Britain and France. This, as one official said, is one of the muddying factors in the situation.

Intensive consultations were reported under way among Washington, London and Paris. They have been involved in argument for some time on the nature of efforts to prevent Laos from becoming another Korea — a cockpit of combat between American-Allyed forces and Sino-Soviet bloc armies. If such a conflict should develop it would probably engulf the rest of Indochina.

a new elementary school at Seventh and Warren, to be called "Heber U. Hunt," a new gymnasium classroom at Smith-Cotton and new rooms in the high school building.

Boonslick Region Library plans to occupy its new quarters at Sixth and Lamine by Jan. 16, Jane Younger, librarian, told the Democrat-Capital.

The building is 42x120 feet, including a garage, and was erected by Cuckler Construction Co., to the library's specifications. It will provide more adequate facilities for the patrons who use Sedalia branch collection, and for housing the regional bookmobile collection and business offices. In line with library statutory regulations, the building was erected by private capital for long-term lease by the regional library board. The present library is located at 602 South Ohio.

Four churches in Sedalia have construction projects underway with two erecting new churches, another building a new educational building and the other two remodeling and adding to present facilities.

Bethany Baptist Church started a new building at North Park and Cooper in mid-November and expect to be able to move from their present church at 718 North Grand by March, the pastor, the Rev. Bill Wall, says.

The new structure, 50x96 feet, was previously scheduled to be ready by Christmas, but bad weather delayed construction. The church will include departments for all groups from nursery age on through adult classes for Sunday School facilities. A temporary auditorium will be used for worship services, Rev. Wall said, with plans in a year or so to erect a new 50x87 feet auditorium and use the temporary auditorium for an educational unit.

Outside structure of the church is of buff brick and haydite block and is being built by Cuckler Construction Co. Rev. Wall says the new church will be a vast improvement as the old building contained limited Sunday School facilities.

The Church of God has moved from their old location at Engineer and Saline to the basement of the new structure at Ninth and Madison. According to the pastor, the Rev. Dorothy Wallace, the church will use the basement, which is completed, for Sunday School and church worship services until the completion of the church proper. Construction of the church itself is hoped to begin in the spring, Rev. Wallace stated. The entire project will run to $20,000, the pastor said.

Completion of a new three-story 50x114 feet educational building is expected by the middle of the year for the First Baptist Church at Sixth and Lamine.

The Rev. J. R. Wallace, pastor, says the new building will include: six nurseries, two beginner departments, three primary, four junior, three intermediate, one young people and one for young married people for Sunday School, plus a conference room, church library and offices for the church staff.

The new unit is air conditioned and has central heating. It will accommodate 607 persons, Rev. Wallace says, and is connected to the old church building by a passageway. The total construction program at the church includes air conditioning for the old church building and will cost $250,000.

Sacred Heart Church is building an addition to the sister's convent, remodeling the old structure, as well as constructing side entrances to the church itself. The new addition to the sister's convent will contain 10 private rooms, a dining room, kitchen and baths.

Rev. Fr. Francis Laudick, church pastor, expects completion of the total project by the end of the summer. "Full scale work on the convent cannot begin until the sisters leave for summer vacation," Father Laudick explained. The project's cost will run to $65,000 or $70,000, he said.

Masonic activities will move from the present location at Seventh and Osage to a new 50x96 feet brick building at 600 West Broadway about April 1, according to officials of the fraternal order. The new one-story temple Democrats and three Republicans entered the race. The word was passed around that "If all my relatives vote for me, I'll win." Emmett Fairfax won the Democratic nomination and was elected in the general election. He defeated Carl Meyer, the Republican nominee.

Late in 1959, a committee collected up enough cash to, with matching funds from the federal government, order four sirens for civil defense — and for storm warning. The sirens arrived early this year but it was not until March 28 that funds to install the warning system could be obtained and the sirens put up. They were tried out — not perfect, but better than no warning system at all.

For years the city has felt the need for a Boys Club. Early in the year the Optimist Club began work on the formation of such a club and, after much work, in September, the club was chartered. It is affiliated with the Boys Clubs of America. This was considered by the newspaper as the eighth most important story, but to the boys of Sedalia, it was considered first.

The Missouri State Fair, an annual affair and always a big story in Sedalia, was considered ninth in importance. Along with the usual grand shows, displays and other entertainment, "Ragtime Bob" Darch appeared to remind Sedalia and all those attending the Fair that Sedalia is the birthplace of classical ragtime music.

In August, without much fanfare, a delegation of Viet Nam legislators from the National Assembly visited Sedalia. They were on a mission of obtaining information on how a middle-size American city is run. They visited City and County offices and took teams of notes on how the local government operates. This story was considered tenth.

Occurring late in the year, but still not too late to be considered among important stories was the announcement early in December that the water rates for Sedalia would be increased after the first of the year. Sedalia had been looking for this for some time, and was not too upset when it occurred. The City Council passed a resolution against the raise, but the Board of Public works declared the raise would go into effect anyway.

The army here, center of National Guard activities, is slated to undergo a rehabilitation program shortly after the first of the year with the addition of three new classrooms. Dean Construction Co., local construction firm, is the apparent low bidder for the work, but the contract has not been officially let.

Included in the work at the army will be three new classrooms, a new, lower ceiling above the drill floor, stabilization of the building's east wall and general repainting and interior work.

Anderson-Pritchard Oil Co., better known as APCO, will have completed a new station at 808 East Broadway by Feb. 1. The station will occupy an entire block and have ten gasoline pumps. The modern station will primarily sell gas, but also offers semi-service facilities.

Perhaps Sedalia's biggest retail business boost is the new Brinc building at 1716 West Ninth, owned by Herman E. (Bud) Bloess, Jr. and David F. Routsong.

Construction is drawing to a close on this modern structure, which contains 15 business units in its 12,000 square feet of floor space. The building is partially in use, but an open house date for its official opening still has not been set, according to one of the owners.

Auto Industry Falls Short Of 1960 Goals

By BEN PHLEGAR AP Automotive Writer

DETROIT (AP)—The auto industry fell short of its goals in 1960 but still wound up with its second best sales year. Uncertainty apparently lies ahead.

Final figures will show sales of about 6.5 million passenger cars, 6 million of them American made. But dealers go into the new year with their largest winter supplies of unsold cars in history, a fair sprinkling of them 1960 models. Total inventories are only a fraction shy of all time records.

While the hoped-for sales explosion never came, things popped on several other fronts in the industry.

Chrysler, Ford and Studebaker-Packard changed top officers, Chrysler in spectacular fashion.

Anti-management forces sued Chrysler and most of its top officials, charging gross mismanagement. Chrysler, in turn, sued for libel.

Five new car names were introduced, all of them in the compact field. One old-line make, the DeSoto, was discontinued after years of rumors as to its fate.

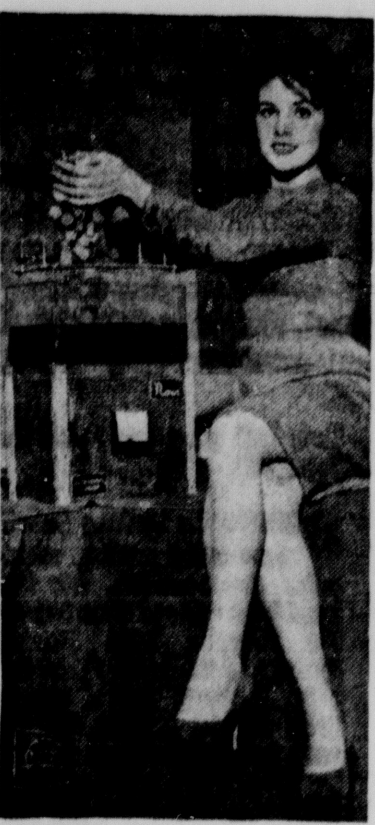

Chevrolet ran away with the individual sales race after bowing to Ford in 1959. Imports dropped off for the first time since they made their original splash in the mid-fifties.

Production in the 1960 model year totaled 6,011,287 passenger cars compared with 5,567,000 in 1959. Compact cars, three of which were first introduced with the 1960 model year, accounted for 26.2 per cent of all production. The year before less than 10 per cent were compacts.

The new ones at the start of 1960 were Falcon, Corvair and Valiant. They were joined in March by Comet. The 1961 model year brought Tempest, Lancer, Special and F-85. Calendar year production of these eight plus Rambler and Lark, the previous smaller makes, totaled about 2.5 million.

The economy trend was further emphasized by the increasing choice of six-cylinder engines instead of V-8s (43.5 per cent of 1960 models compared with 28 per cent in 1959) and manual transmission (up from 24.1 per cent to 27 per cent).

In management, Clarence Francis took over as chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Studebaker-Packard. Ernest Breech resigned as board chairman of Ford in July. President Henry Ford II added the job until November, when Robert McNamara became Ford president.

At Chrysler, William C. Newberg was elected president late in April, then was fired two months later in a dispute over conflicts of interest. L. L. Colbert took the dual job of president and chairman of the board. Newberg agreed to repay $450,000 from his profits in two firms selling to Chrysler.

Detroit attorney Sol A. Dann culminated two years of demands upon Colbert and Chrysler board members to resign by filing suit against the corporation and its executives, asking that a trustee be named to run the business. He charged gross mismanagement.

Dann filed three separate suits. Chrysler did some suing, too. It charged Dann with libel and it sued Newberg's business partner, Ben Stone.

None of the suits appeared near the trial stage as the year ended.

Uncle Sam Set to Open Wallet Wide

WASHINGTON (AP)—Uncle Sam is opening his wallet wider and preparing to give the slumping economy an important lift in 1961.

As a matter of fact, increasing federal spending already has been a big factor in limiting the extent of the business decline.

But more important, the Eisenhower administration has set the pattern for continued increases during the new year. If anything, President-elect John F. Kennedy is likely to give the trend an additional boost.

Federal spending is the most important single prop under the economy. Federal programs account for better than $1 out of every $10 spent in this country for goods and services of all kinds.

The latest figures show that federal purchases of goods and services increased during July, August and September to an annual rate of $52.7 billion. In October, November and December the rate probably approached $54 billion.

On the basis of the revised federal budget estimates issued in October, some experts here say the purchasing rate will climb to about $55 billion in the first three months of 1961. They predict a further advance to about $55.5 billion in April, May and June.

These estimates may prove conservative. They do not take into account defense steps ordered since early October, possible new programs to be initiated by the Kennedy administration, and the stimulating effect of Eisenhower's new program to stem the gold drain by spending more at home and less abroad.

Even so, these estimates indicate that the annual rate of federal purchases will climb by nearly $3 billion between the end of last September and next June 30. Significantly, this increase will coincide with what probably will prove the economy's roughest months. By this token, it will be an important anti-recession factor.

And should a major recession develop, Kennedy has repeatedly said he would turn to deficit spending as a pump-priming device. In addition, he has indicated

Jefferson PTA Holds Christmas Program

The Jefferson PTA met Thursday with Mrs. James Shull presiding.

Mrs. Shull announced Jefferson will be hostesses at the January Council meeting. She also announced that an invitation had been received to attend the next school board meeting.

She also thanked the mothers, Mrs. Charles Young, Mrs. J. O. Dotson and Mrs. James McCall for assisting the school nurse, Mrs. Betty Murrell with the eye and ear test.

Mrs. J. O. Dotson, program chairman, announced the next meeting will be "Dad's Night."

A Christmas operetta entitled "Merry Christmas, Mister Snowman" was presented by grades second through seventh, under the direction of Mrs. Helen Coffelt. Soloists were Dickie Wasson, Russel Cusick, Ricky Kell, Ronda Biggs, Jerry Morris, Janeille Hall and Candy Shull. The Beginners Band played a solo entitled "Jolly Old St. Nick" and the first grade sang "The Determined Snowman."

he would urge bigger defense outlays than those now programmed by the Eisenhower administration. As things now stand, an increase in defense contracting late in 1960 portends further spending increases in the last half of 1961. There always is a lag between contracting and spending.

The new restrictions on overseas spending—designed to deprive foreigners of dollars that could be used to buy American gold—also should give the economy a noticeable lift.

Test-Day for Some All-Americans

Missouri, Minnesota, Arkansas
And Ole Miss Favored Monday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Missouri over Navy, Minnesota over Washington, Arkansas over Duke, and Mississippi over Rice, in each case, by about one touchdown.

That's the way the experts see the four big college football bowl games next Monday that will draw almost a half million spectators, headed by President-elect John F. Kennedy.

For stay-at-home television fans it will be a flickering parade of footballs starting at 1 p.m. EST with the Orange Bowl (Missouri vs. Navy) over CBS and winding up somewhere around 8 p.m. with the finish of the Rose Bowl (Minnesota vs. Washington) over NBC. The Rose Bowl starts at 5 p.m.

In between these two are the Sugar Bowl (Rice vs. Mississippi) at 2 p.m. over NBC and the Cotton Bowl (Arkansas vs. Duke) at 3:30 p.m. over CBS.

Florida Nips
Baylor in Gator Bowl

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Baylor missed a go-for-broke two-point conversion attempt in the closing seconds Saturday and Florida won a 13-12 thriller in the 16th Gator Bowl football game.

Baylor, led by quarterbacks Bobby Ply and Ronnie Stanley, almost pulled out the victory stops after Florida had built a 13-0 lead, but a conversion try by Larry Corley failed after the first touchdown, and Ply's pass barely grazed halfback Ronnie Goodwin's fingertips after the second touchdown.

Florida guard Chet Collins recovered a Baylor fumble and induced another wit he jolting tackle. Each recovery led to a Gator touchdown in the second quarter.

But Baylor wouldn't concede, and the Bears from the Southwest Conference struck by air on the passes of Ply and Stanley for two touchdowns in the fourth quarter. Ply hurled 11 yards to Goodwin for the first, and halfback Ronnie Bull scored the second from the three after a Stanley-to-Goodwin pass covered 49 yards in the final minute.

1960 Sullivan Trophy

NEW YORK (AP)—Rafer Johnson, the greatest all-around athlete in the world, Saturday won the 1960 James E. Sullivan Amateur Athletic Union memorial trophy.

Johnson, world record holder and Olympics champion in the decathlon beat out Wilma Rudolph, also an Olympic star, by taking 233 first places in 635 ballots for 1,611 points. Miss Rudolph had 103 first places and 1,079 points.

Jeff Farrell, the game Wicnita, Kan., swimmer, was third with 85 firsts and 702 points.

Sports writers and amateur sports leaders throughout the country constituted the jury.

Johnson comes from Kingsbury, Calif., and went to the University of California at Los Angeles. He fought his way back to the top of the sports world after a serious leg injury, capturing the world record in the decathlon with 8,683 points. He won the Rome Olympics after an uphill battle against O. K. Yang of Nationalist China, with Vasily Kuznetsov of Russia third.

Seymour Fined for Charging onto Floor

NEW YORK (AP)—Paul Seymour, coach of the St. Louis Hawks of the National Basketball Association, was fined $250 Saturday by loop president Maurice Podoloff for charging onto the playing floor at St. Louis on Dec. 17 and at Boston on Dec. 21.

Podoloff also fined Arnold Red Auerbach, coach of the Boston Celtics, $150 for his actions in the Detroit-at-Boston game on Dec. 24.

The association president said he had not yet received the reports of officials in Thursday night's game at St. Louis between the Hawks and Boston. Fans pelted Auerbach with eggs at his conclusion.

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Thunderbirds of the new National Bowling League announced Saturday the signing of Ed Lubanski of Detroit to a professional contract.

Lubanski is the third player signed by the Thunderbirds. The league, which goes into operation in 1961, permits a minimum team of seven bowlers and a maximum squad of nine.

All-America reputations will be put to the test.

In the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif., a 103,000 sellout, there are no less than three in action—Tom Brown, the giant lineman of favored Minnesota from the Big Ten, center Roy McKasson of Washington, and a 1959 star who was injured early in the season and finally has returned to action—Bob Schloredt, Washington's great quarterback who must be rated as the unknown and possibly explosive factor in this biggest of all bowl games.

In the Orange Bowl at Miami, where the president-elect is expected in the crowd of 76,000, there are two—Joe Bellino of Navy, the fancy-running halfback who won the Heisman Award, and Dan LaRose, Missouri's big end.

In the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans, where the crowd could hit 81,000, there is Mississippi's Jack Gibbs, a top passer, kicker, runner, and field general. Rice, the underdog, has a solid team but nothing to match Gibbs.

In the Cotton Bowl at Dallas there are no first team All-Americans but a lively game is forecast between Arkansas, the favorite, and Duke and a crowd of 75,000 or more is expected.

Purdue Star
Passes North
Past South

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Quarterback Bernie Allen of Purdue and halfback Ray Purdin of Northwestern combined their gridiron talents Saturday to give the Northern All-Stars a 35-7 victory over the South in a rainy Blue-Gray game.

Allen, who led the Boilermakers to an upset over Minnesota, the nation's No. 1 team, during the regular season, passed for three touchdowns against an outclassed Rebel squad in the nationally televised game.

The 6-foot, 173-pound Allen also kicked four extra points.

Purdin scored first on a 39-yard pass and again on one which traveled 8 yards. Then, grabbing a Rebel punt on his 42, he outran frantic South pursuers for 58 yards and another touchdown.

Pregame workouts made the South a 6-point favorite on the strength of the passing ability of Norman Snead of Wake Forest. No. 2 in the nation this year, and Francis Tarkenton of Georgia, fourth in the nation.

But the rain and a rugged Yankee defense neutralized the Rebels' aerial threat.

The South managed to get a passing streak going long enough to score in the third period. Mickey Mangham of Louisiana State went over on a 16-yard toss from Snead.

With Allen out of the Yankee lineup late in the final quarter, quarterback Dale Betty of Maryland took over the attack and engineered the Blues' final score. Betty plunged over from the one.

Players from the Big Eight conference in the game for the Blue team were Harold Beaty, Oklahoma State tackle; Roland McDole, Nebraska guard; Roger Hill of Kansas and Don Fricke of Nebraska, ends; Dale Evans, Kansas State quarterback, and Doyle Shick, Kansas fullback.

Ronnie Hartline of Oklahoma was the starting fullback for the Gray team.

DOCTORS tell you that not only is bowling healthful, but it is also one of the few participation sports that is safe and free from the danger of injury.

Generally speaking, that is true, but there are a few ways you can get in trouble. One of the areas where you could have an accident is in picking the ball off the return rack.

Lift the ball by placing the hands on the outside of it, away from the line of balls on the rack. A badly bruised finger that could keep you out of action for some time could result from being hit by a returning ball while you are picking up yours improperly. Pick up the ball with both hands, rather than the finger of one.

Prevent arm and hand fatigue by distributing the weight in both hands.

Sports Scraps

By D. KELLY SCRUTON

ANOTHER Year has passed bringing about many changes in sports but failed to improve on the winning of the Smith-Cotton Tigers—until late in the year when the Tiger Cagers began carrying a heavy end of the sports for the school. That is in the Central Missouri Conference—tournament-wise the Tigers haven't been faring too well.

We predict much better showings in the basketball team this season—at least in the conference. If the Tigers continue their way of playing against other CEMO teams as they did against the Jefferson City Jays and the Hannibal Pirates, they should end the season high in the circuit standings.

Tournament play hasn't been good to the locals. They went to the finals in the Tipton tournament only to get knocked off in the finals by Lincoln of Jefferson City, and in the Marshall High School Invitational, they were knocked out of the championship by Booneville and dropped down into the play-off for third place.

It is better to lose in these tournament plays, as I see it, than to lose in the Conference. A tournament championship is welcome, but a Conference title means more to the school.

Here is best wishes for a successful year to the Cagers and Coach Howard Glavin.

It is a little early to speak much of 1961 football, but from the way things stack up it looks as if Coach Bob Edmondson will have a fairly good club for the fall. I predict a much better season for the Tigers than last year, and wish the boys well.

Here's Wishing All of You A

Happy and Prosperous New Year

Four Teams Place Two on All-Star Squad

Cape Wins MIAA Tourney;
CMS Mules Finish in Fifth

The champion Cape Girardeau Indians was one of four teams which placed two men on the second annual MIAA Basketball Tournament's ten-man all-star team Friday night. Others were second place Maryville, third place Kirksville, and seventh place Springfield.

Selected by the sportscasters, radio announcers, officials and coaches of the teams were the Indians' Lee Hemmer and Carl Ritter; Maryville's Jerry Meznerick and Dwayne Bond, Kirksville's Larry Swift and Ralph Starrett; and Springfield's Jerry Kirksey and Carl Wilks. The other two were Central Missouri State's Gordon McFarland and Arkansas State Teachers' John Robinson, who Friday night shattered the scoring record of 78 points for three tournament games set last year by Maryville's Gene Jordan. Robinson canned 27 points for a three-game total of 85.

Cape Girardeau whipped Maryville's Bearcats, 80-70, for the championship Friday night behind the 26-point production of Ritter. It was the Indians' second straight tournament title. Last year they whipped Springfield for the crown.

The Indians moved into a 40-37 lead after a close first half and maintained their advantage during the second half. Vivian Reed helped Cape with 14 points and played a fine floor game. Dwayne Bond and Don Drake each scored 16 points for Maryville.

In other games Friday, the Kirksville Bulldogs whipped Arkansas State Teachers, 81-73, for third place; Central Missouri State's Mules out-clashed the Rolla Miners, 67-52, for fifth place; and the Springfield Bears nudged Northeast Oklahoma, 79-74, for seventh.

The Mules got off to a slow start Friday, trailing 7-1 shortly after the game opened. CMS quickly recovered, however, and took an 8-7 lead and never trailed again.

Gordon McFarland, playing his second game of the season, led the Mules to a 34-25 halftime lead with 17 points and fine rebounding before intermission. McFarland wound up with 20 points, second high to teammate Bob Walters' 21. McFarland scored 27 points in his first game Thursday night.

The second half saw both teams let up defensively as the scoring tempo picked up steam. The Miners pulled within one point of the Mules several times, but each time McFarland and Walters pulled CMS out of danger.

Tom Lampe was Rolla's big gun with 17 points. Kirksville led Arkansas State all the way, but not by more than three points until the Bulldogs pulled away with three minutes remaining in the first half. The Missourians led by 11 at intermission, 47-36.

John Robinson led Arkansas State scoring with 27 points for a three-game total of 85, breaking the three-game record of 78 Robinson also played a tremendous floor game.

Ralph Starrett and Larry Swift led Kirksville with 22 and 19 points, respectively.

Springfield needed two overtimes to get past Northeast Oklahoma. The Oklahomans were whipping the Bears in a tight ball control game, 45-32, at halftime. But Springfield resorted to a full court press after intermission and began chopping away at Oklahoma's lead.

The Bears tied it with 11:42 remaining, and the teams swapped leads several times. Springfield's Jerry Stockard tied it at 66-66 with 49 seconds left. John Rice sent Oklahoma State ahead by two with 30 seconds to go, but Springfield guard Jimmy White canned a fielder with eight seconds to go to send the game into the first overtime.

Each team scored a pair of free throws in the first overtime before Springfield stalled out the clock. The Bears' Andy Guzy hit a pair of charity tosses with two minutes left in the second extra period. Rice tied it for Northeast Oklahoma, but Guzy was fouled again and scored two more free throws to send the Bears ahead to stay. Jerry Kirksey iced it with two more free throws before the final buzzer sounded.

Guzy led Springfield's scoring with 21 points.

Says Pollution Costs
US Sportsmen Millions
Of Fishing Trips

GLENVIEW, Ill. (AP)—The Izaak Walton League says lake and stream pollution is costing the nation's sportsmen millions of fishing trips every year.

Results of a survey made public Saturday by the national outdoor organization showed fishermen in 41 of its local chapters considered recreation waters near their homes inadequate. Thirty-nine termed their lakes and than last year, and wish the boys well.

—O—

During the Holiday Season some enjoy parties, others enjoy the vacation, but five local boys enjoyed a float down the Nangua from Bennett Springs to the Lake of the Ozarks. I would say it was a little rugged putting the canoes into the water at 11 a.m. Dec. 26 and working their way over some rapids and down the river to the lake, but they reported it was fun.

They carried their sleeping bags, tents, and food, making an overnight stop and reaching the end of the 15-mile journey Tuesday evening. Incidentally they did their own cooking and reports are the food was good.

The boys were James and Don Hausam, Dieter Kleinschmidt, James Mehl and Jack Kenney. They were sponsored by Paul Hausam. Young Kleinschmidt, an exchange student from Germany, reported a "great time."

If more youths of their age bracket spent a little more time on outdoor life and such entertainment, they would learn quickly what real fun is.

MU's Losing and Navy's Winning

Mizzou Grid Tigers Will Try To Break Two Streaks Monday

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A football team which hasn't won in six bowl appearances, and one which hasn't lost in three such starts, meet Monday in the Orange Bowl as the Big Eight champion Missouri eleven takes on Navy in the 27th renewal of the classic.

A crowd of close to 75,000 is expected. The game will be televised over the CBS network beginning at noon central standard time.

Missouri, to the dismay of Coach Dan Devine, is rated a 1½ point favorite. His Tigers have had better luck as an underdog this year. "I say Navy could beat any team in the country," the dark-thatched coach said, then added not too convincingly: "They probably should beat us."

While proving Navy's best publicity agent Devine made it clear his Missourians are no pushover.

"We have an intensely proud and high-class bunch of boys, who know only one way to play—to win," he said.

"We have four engineering students and two pre-meds in our kick-off lineup. One of the pre-meds, defensive halfback Fred Brossart, is Phi Beta Kappa. You know such boys are playing at a great personal sacrifice."

Both teams arrived here last Sunday, and Monday they plunged into a schedule of intensive work, although refraining from heavy scrimmage. Physically they are about as ready as they ever could be. Paul Garvis, Missouri guard who suffered facial cuts in an automobile accident, will play, but Devine said the stocky junior isn't quite up to par.

Missouri has tremendous respect for Navy's running and passing. "But it isn't a one-man team," Devine said darkly. "You can stop Bellino and it still will beat you. And you can stop the rest of the team and Bellino will beat you.

"And that Hal Spooner is a fine passer. He throws the hook pass expertly, and that's a hard one to stop."

Navy Coach Wayne Hardin has been more reticent about his praise of Missouri. He merely remarked: "Anything Devine says about our team I could say about his," and let it go at that.

Five Missourians who started in the losing game with Georgia in the Orange Bowl last New Year's Day are back, including towering end Danny LaRose, defensive leader of a fine line which didn't permit a touchdown by rushing until the ninth game, with Oklahoma.

Technically Missouri has a 10-0 record. The Tigers lost their final game with Kansas, 23-7, but Kansas was forced to forfeit because of use of an ineligible player.

Navy has a 9-1 record, its lone defeat a 10-10 setback at the hands of Duke.

The bowl rivals have met two common opponents—SMU and the Air Force. Missouri defeated SMU 20-0 and the Air Force 34-8, and Navy downed SMU 26-7 and Air Force 35-3.

Chargers Meet
Houston Today
For AFL Crown

HOUSTON (AP)—The Los Angeles Chargers, riding a four game winning streak, meet the Houston Oilers Sunday in the first championship game of the National Football League.

Despite identical records for the two division champions, Houston is a 6½-point favorite for the nationally televised game ABC-TV, (1:30 p.m. EST).

A sudden death overtime will be used to settle the championship should the regulation 60 minutes end in a tie.

Four days of rain slowed pregame ticket sales for the 35,500-seat Jeppesen Public School Stadium, but all proceeds will go to the players—60 per cent to the winners and 40 per cent to the losers.

Both teams wrapped up division crowns with 10-4 records. Houston was never headed after jumping to a 5-1 early start. Los Angeles had its early troubles but swept 8 of its last 9 games.

Los Angeles holds a 2-1 edge over the Oilers after two league games and an early exhibition but the Chargers point edge is only 74-72.

streams adequate, 20 per cent rated their excellent.

Executive Director Frank Gregg said members surveyed said they would take 13 additional local fishing trips annually if waters were "cleaned up." Applying the figure to the nation's 20 million anglers, he said, means pollution is depriving fishermen of 260 million outings a year.

S-C Rips Carrollton For Third in Tourney

The Smith-Cotton Tigers, with every player scoring, raced past Carrollton Saturday night, 80-52, for third place in the Marshall Christmas Tournament. Boonville and Clinton met later in the evening for the championship.

The Tigers, still feeling the pain of a 62-55 loss to Boonville Friday night, regained their poise for the third-place battle, and Coach Howard Glavin had reserves playing part of the second quarter and all of the third and fourth periods as the Bengals rolled up a 43-22 halftime margin behind the fine shooting of Tim Morgan and Mike Wiseman.

Wiseman and Morgan both left the game at intermission and each had 14 points stashed away for the night.

Keith Hall and tiny Jack Taylor carried the Tigers through the third quarter with five points each, and Alvin Gordon added four and Ernie Dow contributed three in the period to keep the Sedalias ahead, 62-42.

McCown hit four fielders in the fourth quarter to help the Sedalias pad their lead.

Charles Ferguson and Gary Shryer led Carrollton's offense with 11 points each.

The Tigers were knocked out of the championship running Friday night by a rangy Boonville team that out-hustled, out-shot, and out-rebounded the Sedalias. The score was 62-55, as Smith-Cotton suffered its second loss of the season.

Boonville took a 15-12 quarter lead, but the Tigers pulled within one point at halftime, 34-33.

Boonville gained its deciding margin in the third quarter, scoring 19 points while Sedalia collected only 13. Each team scored nine points in the final period, but was scarred with bad passes and poor shooting by both teams.

Boonville's 6-foot-3 Timm led a well-balanced attack with 16 points, followed by Hoerl (6-2), Topel (6-1), and Harper with 12 each.

Tim Morgan was the game's high scorer with 21 points. Mike Wiseman had ten for the Tigers. Boonville 15 19 19 9-62 Smith-Cotton 22 21 13 9-55

Bean Finds Wife Happy All the Time

By JAMES BACON
AP-Movie-TV Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Suffer! Suffer!" agent Jack Bean keeps telling his pretty actress wife. "How can you be so happy all the time?"

"I know they say actresses must suffer for their career," bemoans Mitzi Gaynor, "but can I help it if I'm just too well adjusted?"

Such talk might not seem so extraordinary outside Hollywood, but here even the French poodles have psychiatrists.

As one who has known Mitzi since she was 16, I'm always amazed at how well she rolls with the punches that only a heart-break town like Hollywood can throw.

Take her four years at 20th in a series of bad pictures that completely ignored her considerable talents.

At the time, Mitzi philosophized that she was young, and after those turkeys nothing but good things could come her way. She had barely uttered those words when the studio cast her in the thankless role of a sweet girl in a Marilyn Monroe picture, "There's No Business Like Show Business."

A sweet girl in a Marilyn Monroe picture is like the leading lady in a Marx Bros. movie—only your relatives know you're in it. The role was bad enough but the front office informed Mitzi on the first day of shooting that her services were no longer needed after she finished the movie.

Only Mitzi would have taken such news the way she did. "I just looked on my firing as a blessing in disguise," she says. "I figured if I were leaving, I might as well go out with an 11 o'clock finish. So I worked my head off."

The result is history. Mitzi, in a thankless part, stole the movie from the lot's prize sex bomb.

The picture triggered Mitzi's new career. A few years later, the studio that once fired her paid a whopping six-figure salary for her to star in "South Pacific."

Mitzi didn't gloat over her success; she just went on being happy. The only difference from the old Mitzi is that her happiness is now mostly confined to a big Beverly Hills mansion—the first home she and Bean ever owned.

But as Bean says: "She was happy when we rented a small apartment. She adjusts to her environment. I think she could even adjust to San Quentin."

What's the secret of Mitzi's state of mind?

"I've always liked my work. I work hard at it but I'm never satisfied with myself. When I accomplish a goal, I immediately set another goal and work towards that."

Mitzi, as vivacious in person as she is on the screen, doesn't have the usual child star antipathy towards show business. Most of the child stars who make it big become rebels.

"I was never shoved into show business," Mitzi says. "I started dancing professionally when I was 11, and at 13 I was featured in Los Angeles Civic Light Opera productions of Broadway hit shows. I loved every minute of it."

At a time when most kids are still playing with dolls, Mitzi was co-starring in "Louisiana Purchase," "Song of Norway," "The Great Waltz" and other shows. Some of her co-stars were Victor Moore and the late Bobby Clark.

Her name in those days was Mitzi Gerber but someone at Fox suggested that it sounded too much like baby food. She was only 16 when she was signed there but one cab driver, she recalls, got her confused with another famous Gaynor—Janet.

"I had been in my first picture and well on my way to a big head when the cabbie asked for my autograph. As I signed it, he said sweetly: 'I thought you were so wonderful with Charles Farrell in "Seventh Heaven."'"

That picture was made six years before Mitzi was born. "That deflated me," she says.

New State Legislature Has Many Problems to Fight

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—Redistricting; Revenue; And the razzle-dazzle involved when a new administration moves in to assume the big job of running the state government.

That's the way things are shaping up for the 1961 Legislature that opens at noon Wednesday.

Besides meeting the state government problems, the Legislature will have some reorganization problems of its own since both houses will be running under new leadership and there will be many freshmen members.

About the only similarity to the 1959 session is the fact that both House and Senate remain firmly under Democratic control.

In the House Speaker Thomas D. Graham of Cole County will be guiding the session with the aid of Rep. James G. Trimble of Platte County as majority floor leader.

In the Senate Sen. Albert M. Spradling of Cape Girardeau will be president pro tem with Sen. John W. Joynt of St. Louis as majority floor leader. Presiding will be a new lieutenant governor, Hillary Bush of Kansas City.

For the first time the session will run until the middle of July under a constitutional amendment adopted by the voters Nov. 8. Actual work on bills will end June 30, a month later than formerly.

The legislators also will be drawing $4,800 a year salaries for the first time—the rate set at a special session to replace the old $1,500 a year.

If things go as expected the 1961 lawmakers will need all of the extra time and perhaps even more. Any one of a half dozen pressing issues could force them into extra innings in the form of a special session after the regular one ends July 15.

Take congressional and senatorial redistricting for example—two problems bound to generate great political battles.

Congressional redistricting will focus on the problem of tripling the state's present 11 districts to 10. If the Legislature fails to do the job, 1962 congressional candidates would have to run at large, something the rural areas want to avoid if possible.

Senatorial redistricting will be turned over to a special bipartisan commission but the Legislature must ratify the commission's findings. The senatorial problem is primarily to equalize the size of the 34 districts in a period of shifting urban population.

Equally hot is the revenue problem. Final answers on this one won't be known for months until the lawmakers find out what Gov. elect John M. Dalton's program includes and decide how much of it they want to enact.

But it was clear long before the session started the state would have to find more revenue somewhere—and lots of it.

Appropriations for the current two-year period ending next June 30 amounted to more than $1,157,000,000. Requests of state agencies for the next two years exceeded that by well over 100 million.

Full financing of the school foundation program alone would require some 75 million dollars more. Getting a 10-year mental health program under way would make more millions. So would an expanded highway program. So would any kind of medical care program for the aged.

Where's the money coming from? Finding the answer to that question will give the 1961 legislators the toughest session ends.

The new governor has advocated a withholding system of collecting the state income tax as one means of bringing in more revenue. But that would produce only an estimated six million or so a year.

That would be a mere drop in the bucket, the conservative State Chamber of Commerce said in advocating an increase in the sales tax from two to three cents on the dollar. The extra penny would produce an estimated 60 million more a year.

Excise tax increases on beer, liquor and cigarettes were killed in the 1959 session but are expected to be offered again.

A gasoline tax increase of some kind also is expected to be proposed, but a special committee which has been studying highway problems has not yet submitted its final report.

Many other major problems await the 1961 session.

Dalton has pledged he will fight for a new traffic safety program as perhaps the No. 1 problem outside the fiscal area. He has proposed a tough enforcement policy with a crackdown on drunken and reckless driving and a much stiffer drivers' license law—all of which would require an increase in the strength of the Highway Patrol.

A broad traffic safety program developed by a special legislative committee two years ago went down the drain.

Dalton also has promised a determined effort to aid Missouri's industrial development, perhaps by establishing a new department of commerce to replace the Resources and Development Division. Linked with this are proposals for some kind of a loan fund to aid new industry.

Special legislation also is expected on the problems of the state colleges and universities. They face an enrollment upsurge of massive size in the next few years and educators have warned a start must be made immediately to get ready for the influx.

Problems of the aging, of regulating the use of nuclear energy, of water resources development, revision of the juvenile code, park expansion and growth and dozens of others also are on the agenda.

So stand back, folks, and give the legislators room. They're going to need it.

Snaky Situation Will Remain That Way

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Stephen John Hawkins' neighbors took him to court to force him to get rid of the snake pit in his backyard. They failed. The judge agreed with Hawkins that snakes are not dangerous unless alarmed and don't come under the dangerous animals ordinance anyway because they're reptiles.

To Get Worse First

Good Times Are Expected For Most By End of 1961

By L.A. BROPHY
AP General Business Editor
NEW YORK (AP)—Things will get worse before they get better, but by the end of 1961 good times for most people are expected to be back.

That about sums up what the experts think of the state of the economy, present and future.

They figure it this way: A continuation for the first few months of 1961 of the slow erosion of business that began last mid-year, then a pickup increasing to the end of the year.

Reasons for such a belief are: (1) The consumer will loosen his purse strings; (2) the government will send more money into the economic bloodstream.

In many respects it will be up to the individual to make 1961 a better year.

If he decides to buy that new car, to get his wife the home appliance she covets, to buy a house or make postponed repairs on the old one, to generally spend money that has been laid away, the economy will get a stimulation it badly needs.

Surveys have indicated the consumer is planning to do just that. Notably, some findings are for an increase in new home buying and in planned purchasing of big ticket home appliances such as freezers, ranges, refrigerators and television sets.

There seems little doubt that federal purchases of goods and services will go up. It is the biggest prop under the economy. As the year ended, it was at an annual rate of $54 billion. Forecasts are that it will go to $55 billion in the first three months of 1961 and undoubtedly higher if present conditions become worse.

Distressing pockets of bad times dotted the nation in 1960. With the steel operating rate at only around half of capacity as the year ended, union officials estimated 150,000 workers were idle. And yet on the face of the massive economic indicators, 1960 was a record year.

The gross national product (the total value of all goods and services) was estimated at an annual rate of $503 billion and that was $15 billion higher than 1959.

The automobile industry made slightly more than six million passenger cars, second only to 1955, the best year in history.

Retail sales were estimated by the Federal Reserve Board at $220 billion, compared to $215.4 billion for 1959. Retail and foreign trade combined set record dollar volume.

Year of the Bull Begins in Asia

ume, but the other side of the coin showed profits not keeping pace because of higher operating costs.

All of these things led to confusion as to just what label to pin on business. Were we in a recession?

Some called it "mild recession." Other economists settled for "rolling readjustment" or "an apparent recession."

Whatever the name, one of the harsh facts was that some four million people were out of work as 1960 ended and there were dismal forecasts the figure could go beyond five million during the first few months of 1961.

Apartment Building Fire Kills One in KC

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Fire broke out in a four-story apartment building late Saturday, taking the life of a woman and causing injuries to at least seven other persons.

Some of the victims, trapped by flames and smoke, were injured leaping from windows. Six were taken to General Hospital and one to St. Luke's. Their conditions were not known immediately.

The dead woman was identified as Mrs. Helen Barton, 43.

The fire started on the first floor and quickly blocked the hallways.

Firemen knocked out the blaze before it reached the upper floors.

Patrons in a tavern across the street ran to the scene and helped some of the occupants before firemen arrived.

PRICES ARE UP—Consumer prices, on the average, were higher in 1960 than in any other postwar year—almost 30 per cent up from 1947-49 period. Services advanced most; durable commodity prices sloped off slightly from last year.

Production Cut Douses Steel Boom

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Labor peace came to the steel industry at the outset of 1960 and all signs pointed to a record business year. But slumping production and unemployment smothered the potential boom.

As the new decade began, some steel officials confidently predicted unparalleled production of 130 million net tons—or more—for the year.

The final figure at year's end was in the neighborhood of 99 million tons.

This still made 1960 the sixth best tonnage year in the books—thanks to a tremendous start. But the average operating rate was only about 67 per cent of capacity.

For a time, it seemed forecasts of a boom year might hit the mark. The nation's mills, running near full speed after the record 116-day strike of 1959, produced 34,739,210 tons in first quarter—tops for any three month period in history.

Then steel consumers, taking stock of bulging inventories, began reducing orders. Mills slowed down; furlough notices went up.

The industry's operating rate slipped from peak 95.7 per cent in January to 42.2 per cent in the July 4 holiday week.

The tempo picked up little in succeeding months, fluctuating in or near the 50-55 per cent range, and the year ended with no recovery in sight.

As output dropped, so did employment of production and maintenance workers.

David J. McDonald, president of the 1,200,000-member United Steelworkers, estimated some 150,000 members were idled and twice as many more were working less than 40 hours a week.

Steel analysts put chief blame for the production slump on slashing inventories by consumers, during the second half, big steel users maintained supplies at abnormally low levels. Mill orders suffered as a result.

Foreign steel imports, competition from other materials and a series of railroad strikes also contributed to the over-all decline.

Despite increased payroll costs, steel producers held the line on base prices. Industry sources believe prices will remain unchanged as long as market weaknesses persist.

Some firms had to cut supplies properly come before said meeting. Dated at Sedalia, Missouri, this 31st day of December, 1960, I, W. F. Keyser, President.

Upturn By Midyear

Jack Will Inherit a Mild Recession, Economists Say

WASHINGTON (AP)—President-elect John F. Kennedy apparently has inherited a recession, though that may be a harsh word for a decline as mild and brief as most economists now foresee.

An immediate problem confronting the new administration will be one that Kennedy foretold in the election campaign—serious unemployment.

However, a majority of government and industry experts interviewed for this survey predicted privately that recovery will be sighted by midyear. Over the whole of 1961, national output and income should top 1960's all-time high.

In severity the business dip is not expected to exceed one or two per cent. That is, total production will not fall more than $5 billion to $10 billion below the peak rate of $505 billion annually reached last spring.

In duration, it may be as brief as the last recession, one of the shortest on record. The 1957 downturn began in September; the upturn started eight months later, in April, 1958.

But the country never regained full employment after that recession, and joblessness is expected to be the most stubborn problem of this one. Unemployment probably will exceed five million by February.

By a year from now, the economists believe, total output—the gross national product, or value of all goods and services produced—may exceed the 1960 peak by $10 billion to $15 billion in annual rate. This means it could go as high as $250 billion. A few are making even higher predictions for the final quarter of the year, despite the unemployment problem.

In November joblessness rose to a postwar record. Labor Department experts acknowledged that even if business activity does not weaken but merely holds even, the total probably will move past the five million mark at just about the time Kennedy takes his oath of office.

The disappointing employment figures for October—normally the best month of the year for jobs—were withheld until after the election, although the administration had released them in advance in previous election years.

Similarly, Kennedy and his advisers pulled their punches on the state of the economy, not wanting to be charged with "talking the country into a recession" or to be labeled "prophets of gloom and doom" as Democrats were in the congressional elections of 1954 and 1958. Kennedy told many crowds, nevertheless, that the big job of his first six months would be that of coping with unemployment.

Part of the expectation of a recovery in the second half of 1961 is based on a general belief that Kennedy will move rapidly to stimulate business unless recovery signs begin to be visible very soon.

Deficit spending by the government is expected. This will channel new federal dollars into the economy to supplement the stepped-up spending initiated by the Eisenhower administration in recent months. Both Kennedy and Vice President Richard M. Nixon committed themselves to run deficits, if necessary, whenever anti-recession measures were needed.

If the experts are fooled and the slump becomes truly serious, Kennedy is expected to call on Congress for a temporary income tax reduction. That course was suggested two years ago but was turned down by the administration.

Many believe the effects of the 116-day steel strike in late 1959 are still being felt indirectly. When work was resumed under a federal injunction, there was no assurance that the steel workers would not walk out again early in 1960. Industry indulged in hand-over-fist ordering of steel and other materials to build up stocks ahead of a possible shortage and a price increase.

Suddenly inventories were over-sized, and the huge demand dropped off. In the second quarter of 1960 national output reached its all-time peak. But in the third quarter, instead of continuing upward as expected, it dropped 1 1/2 billions to a $503.5 billion annual rate.

The New President's Health:

Addison's Disease and John Kennedy

Copyright 1960 by Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK —(NEA)—Americans everywhere are concerned about the health of the next president. Physicians report they are deluged with inquiries about the health of President-elect Kennedy and whether or not he has or has had Addison's disease, a destruction of the adrenal cortex.

These questions deserve a clear and direct answer. The Newspaper Enterprise Association has gone to top medical authorities and is able to state:

President-elect Kennedy does not have Addison's disease. He has never shown the classical signs which Dr. Thomas Addison of London described for the first time in 1855.

His adrenal cortex was not destroyed, as was the case with patients described by Addison. His adrenal glands function.

The significance of this will be told in simple terms.

What is not generally realized is that over the years use of the term "Addison's disease" has been broadened far beyond its original meaning. Thus some doctors refer today to almost any loss of function of the adrenal glands as Addison's disease or "addisonism." Hearing the term, another doctor nevertheless immediately thinks of the drastic and formerly fatal symptoms to which Addison's name was applied.

An official medical report last June said Senator Kennedy's health was excellent and he was well able to carry the weight of high office. However, due to the broadened use of the term Addison's disease, rumors have continued to gain currency that he suffers from that disease, that he is "kept alive by cortisone" or "filled with steroids." Steroids are substances produced naturally by the glands or synthetically in laboratories to control bodily functions.

Doctors, so says a prominent doctor, contribute to these rumors. Another doctor attributes them to "amateur doctors." This dispatch will seek to explain where the misunderstanding occurs.

The most complete statement on Kennedy's health was made to the candidate June 11, 1960, by his physicians. They are Dr. Eugene J. Cohen, endocrinologist and an assistant professor of clinical medicine, and Dr. Janet G. Travell, associate professor of clinical pharmacology, both at Cornell University Medical College. Addressed to Kennedy it noted that they had been his doctors for "more than the last five years" and said in part:

"Your health is excellent. Your vitality and resistance to infection are above average. Your ability to handle an exhausting workload is unquestionably superior." Kennedy was found capable of meeting "any obligation of the presidency without need for special medical treatment, unusual rest periods or other limitations."

"With respect to the old problem of adrenal insufficiency," the report went on, "as late as December, 1958, when you had a general checkup with a specific test of adrenal function, the results showed that your adrenal glands do function."

Less than a month later, Mrs. India Edwards, co-chairman of the Citizens for Johnson backing Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson for the Democratic presidential nomination, asserted in Los Angeles that Kennedy had "Addison's disease."

"Doctors told me that he would not be alive if it were not for cortisone," Mrs. Edwards added.

On Nov. 3-five days before the election-John Roosevelt, son of the late president, backing Vice President Nixon, demanded that Kennedy disclose whether he suffered any adrenal insufficiency "as a result of Addison's disease."

President-elect Kennedy has bounced through primary and election campaigns of unprecedented length and difficulty. The medical significance of this achievement is that it would have been beyond the capacity of one with true Addison's disease. The old Briton would have had no professional interest in a man capable of playing touch football the morning after election.

All right then, what is true Addison's disease and what was it that befell Senator Kennedy? For the licensed and "amateur" doctors and public, here is an authentic summation:

Lieut. Jack Kennedy, U.S.N.R., was at the tiller of his motor torpedo boat off the Solomons in 1943 when it was slashed in two by a Japanese destroyer. With his back severely injured, Kennedy led his crew in a three mile swim to an atoll, towing a wounded crewman by holding the man's Mae West jacket in his teeth.

That back injury and the terrible ordeal of the swim were followed by malaria. He had a spinal disc operation and was invalided out of the Navy in 1944.

At about the end of the war, doctors discovered the now-controversial "adrenal insufficiency."

By October, 1954, a year after his marriage, he was on crutches. He had a metal plate spinal fusion but a staphylococcus infection set in around the plate and it had to be removed four months later. Meanwhile, his name was twice on the danger list and his family was summoned.

With Kennedy's recovery from the staphylococcus infection, the two New York doctors came into the picture, Dr. Cohen, to treat the adrenal insufficiency and Dr. Travell, a tennis-playing woman doctor with a remarkable record for rehabilitating people with muscular problems.

Before the Democrats met in national convention at Chicago in July, 1956, Kennedy had regained his old bounce. He nominated Adlai Stevenson and so impressed the convention that he very nearly came off with the vice presidential nomination.

And now, to complete the record, what was the "adrenal insufficiency," which Dr. Cohen treated? The following explanation of adrenal function by Dr. Harold Thomas Hyman, NEA medical columnist, helps to understand.

PRESIDENT ELECT KENNEDY

"... the public need not be concerned that the President-elect would be unable to shoulder the burdens of the presidency. . . ."

The adrenal glands, Dr. Hyman points out are paired structures that sit on top of the kidneys like a cap. Each gland has an inner core (medulla) and an outer rind (cortex).

The adrenal core manufactures epinephrine. You know this as the drug adrenalin, which raises the blood pressure when it is injected (among other effects). Contrary to many beliefs, this inner core is not essential to life and is not primarily involved in Addison's disease.

The adrenal cortex, which wraps the core like an orange peel, is essential and is vitally concerned in Addison's disease.

Normally it produces the adrenal cortical substances. Finally, the secretion of most of these substances is regulated by the tiny pituitary gland.

The pituitary is a master control center for vital activities in our bodies. Acting by means of ACTH (adrenocorticotrophic hormone, now often used in treatment of arthritis, asthma and related disorders) the pituitary slows or speeds cortical functions according to bodily needs.

Thus the symptoms identified by Dr. Addison may come from either of two causes: 1. failure of the pituitary control to secrete sufficient ACTH, or 2. failure of those two little cap-like glands to respond to the pituitary signal.

The disease Addison described in 1855 resulted from actual destruction of the outer rind or cortex of both adrenal glands, usually by tuberculosis, sometimes by cancer, sometimes by an unexplained withering.

This disease was invariably fatal until discovery of the cortical substances such as desoxycorticosterone and cortisone. With increasing knowledge of adrenal function it was found that a temporary functional failure of the adrenal cortex might occur with relative frequency from such familiar causes as stress and strain or physical shock. Indeed a common cause for functional adrenal insufficiency today is the sudden stopping of steroid medication that has been given for a multitude of ailments.

This acute insufficiency resulting from strain or shock is obviously not the same thing as the lasting, irreversible organic destruction of the pituitary regulator or the cortical rind of the adrenal gland. This insufficiency can be readily controlled by administration of cortical steroids in pill form. It may be followed by total recovery.

So ends Dr. Hyman's technical description of adrenal insufficiency.

Doctors point out that the clearest refutation of the rumor that Kennedy ever had true Addison's disease are the facts that he is alive, preparing for the presidency, and has just become a father.

"I am certain beyond a shadow of doubt," says Dr. Hyman, "that Senator Kennedy could not possibly have been afflicted with true Addison's disease, as defined by Thomas Addison and understood by most physicians."

To classify Kennedy's disturbance as true Addison's disease, Dr. Hyman concludes, is as misleading as it would be to confuse nervousness with insanity.

One final question: What is the present status of the President-elect's adrenal function? It is authoritatively stated to be this:

Senator Kennedy is in excellent health. Exactly what medication he is taking has not been spelled out. But even if he were to be taking a couple of pills a day to maintain an adequate adrenal balance, the public need not be concerned that the President-elect would be unable to shoulder the burdens of the presidency because of Addison's disease.

Stronger Measures

New Administration Could Bring Some Big Decisions

WASHINGTON (AP)—The year 1961 may be one of major decisions for agriculture.

It brings into power an administration committed to stronger measures to raise farm prices and income. Income is running about 25 per cent below levels many farm leaders contend farmers deserve.

Without further government action, the new year probably would be about the same as 1960. Economists say production and marketing factors probably would keep farm income at this year's level of slightly more than $11 billion. In the postwar period, it climbed to nearly $17 billion.

The experts look for continued heavy sales and disposal of crops and livestock products abroad. They also foresee continued bumper crops, assuming of course the weather is normal.

Consumers' incomes as a whole are expected to be somewhat higher for 1961 than for 1960, thus putting a firm foundation under the demand for food.

The new year, like its immediate predecessors, will bring additional technological advances. Farm families are expected to turn more and more to opportunities elsewhere to supplement incomes.

There is no letup in sight in the high cost of farm production. Tractors, harvesters and other farm supplies, are expected to hold strong in price. Farm wages continue to advance; so do taxes. These costs figure strongly in a leveling off of a long boom in land prices.

The year could bring new price troubles for the livestock segment of agriculture. The supply of cattle has been climbing to levels that already have weakened prices. A further price decline appears likely this year.

Hog production is on a new expansion cycle. Lower hog prices are expected next fall. Lower egg prices also may be in store.

The new administration is expected to ask Congress to take immediate action to offset some of the depressing agricultural factors.

During the campaign, Sen. John F. Kennedy promised, if elected, to signal an about face on the Eisenhower administration policy of getting government out of agriculture and of reducing farm price supports.

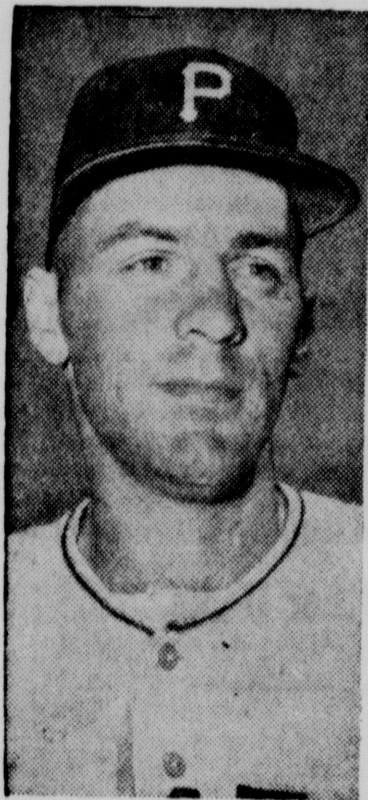

Kennedy contended that the only way to improve conditions on the farm was to invoke rigid production controls designed to strengthen prices and in turn to put more money into farmers' pockets.

He also promised broadened programs to help the needy at home and abroad—steps designed to siphon off some of the price-depressing food surpluses.

But will Congress go along? The fact that most Midwest farm states went against Kennedy in the election may strengthen opponents of his farm proposals.

Fighting these programs will be the strong American Farm Bureau Federation. It favors withdrawal of government from agriculture. But helping Kennedy will be the National Farmers Union and, to a somewhat lesser extent, the National Grange.

DIET

We always eat more than we should during the holiday season and of course gain a few pounds. It is smart to start right after the first of the year, before those pounds decide to stay, to diet and take them off. A little exercise along with your diet will help proportion your figure. It may be a little difficult to get started, but you will be happy with the results. Spring weather will be along before you know it. Easter is early and you will be thrilled when you try on the new styles and see how beautifully they fit. Proper diet you know, doesn't only improve your figure but your skin and hair both profit by it. Spring clothes for '61 are beautiful — knits of all types will play a big role in your wardrobe, a good figure will improve the way they look, so go to work now.

GRAND JURY—These men took the headlines early in 1960. Judge Frank Hayes in Circuit Court impaneled the Grand Jury in early January, with specific instructions to investigate the 12-Mile Road District. Be It Resolved

A mere heartbeat separated the old year from the new. Only one tick of the clock was all the time it took. The flick of a pen or hitting a different key on a typewriter was all that was required to make the arbitrary transition from 1960 to 1961.

There is nothing in the days themselves that distinguishes the first day of the new year from the last day of the old. But in our minds there is indeed something special about this beginning of a brand-new year. For it is another marker in humanity's comparatively brief sojourn on this planet and another unspotted new leaf in the Book of Life bearing our individual names.

New Year's Day is customarily the day on which we make resolutions concerning our future behavior—set new goals, or renew our determination to pursue old, neglected ones. It says much about human nature that we should select one particular day of the year for personal stocktaking. A really well-run life should carry on a perpetual self-inventory.

So, too, is it human nature to forget these fresh promises very quickly after they are made. The new year soon becomes just another year, and the old familiar ruts become deeper and more comfortable.

Honesty might perhaps demand that we stop kidding ourselves and admit that we have no intention of living up to our resolutions. But that kind of honesty is not always the best policy. At least, not when the resolutions deal with something important.

This nation of ours was founded upon a number of idealistic resolutions. We have failed on short in many of them. Why not admit it and then forget the glowing promises—equality, inalienable rights, and all the rest? We could have saved ourselves a lot of trouble over the years, have a lot fewer laws, a shorter constitution, no conscience to bother us in the face of national and international demands for greater social justice.

On the other hand, we might not have any nation at all—at least not the America we know—were it not for the resolutions of a few men who fought for freedom and then laid down a blueprint to enlarge and preserve it. Their resolutions are our heritage. If we have failed in keeping some, how gloriously have we succeeded in others.

This year a new administration takes over the custodianship of that heritage with a set of resolutions of its own which it has laid before the people. Compared to the problems that the nation as a whole faces, whether or not we keep our little private resolutions is of no moment at all.

In this light, maybe it would be wiser to forget our petty promises—to stop smoking, to remember Aunt Sara's birthday—if we replaced them with something better. Like resolutions to keep informed on what's going on in the world and in the government, to investigate new ideas, other philosophies, to hold our old opinions up to a fresh scrutiny and to speak up for them boldly if they merit it.

In other words, be it resolved that we will act as free men—free in mind as well as in political status—in 1961.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Oil Slick at Palm Beach Breakfast

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—More than "space" was behind that Christmas holiday luncheon which President-elect Kennedy staged in Florida for Vice President-elect Johnson, new Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon, and Sen. Bob Kerr of Oklahoma. How to catch up with Russia in satellites and rockets was, of course, under discussion. But also in the background was a more earthly subject—oil.

What happened was that Bob Kerr, the Bible-pounding, wealthy oil man from Oklahoma, first tried to stop Dillon's appointment as Secretary of the Treasury.

"I got this fellow Dillon blocked," he told friends on Capitol Hill before Dillon was appointed. "When I heard he was up for Secretary of the Treasury I let the fur fly. I had just brought Bob Anderson (Ike's Secretary of the Treasury) around to my way of thinking about all this money going to support big corporations abroad. And now they want to appoint a man whose company has drained billions out of the USA."

Kerr had in mind the fact that the Dillon Read Investment Company helped pump about one billion dollars in private bonds into pre-Hitler Germany, most of them defaulted; also has backed various foreign bond issues since. Kerr favors U.S. aid for underprivileged countries, but no aid for privileged corporations abroad. He does favor the oil depletion allowance and other tax privileges for American oil companies, including his own Kerr-McGee Corporation.

At any rate, when the Baptist senator from Oklahoma failed to block Dillon's appointment, growls came from Kerr's direction about a Senate attack on Dillon.

Kennedy Heads Off Fight

So Kennedy, the smartest politician elected president since FDR, promptly invited Kerr to lunch. Kerr is the new chairman of the Senate space committee, and the invitation was to discuss "space." But simultaneously Kennedy had Dillon slip over from Hobe Sound, Fla., an hour's drive away, to join the luncheon party.

Dillon has nothing to do with space. But Kerr, as a member of the Senate finance committee, can make a lot of trouble for any Secretary of the Treasury. He can attack his confirmation, oppose his tax bills; and no later than last August Kerr voted against Kennedy's plan of medical aid for the aged.

What Bob Kerr wants most, however, is to have the new Secretary of the Treasury protect the oil depletion allowance and other oil tax deductions. These are so generous that the Senator's Kerr-McGee Company, though making a profit of $5,378,973 in 1958, paid absolutely no income tax. The most taxes Kerr-McGee has paid in the past 10 years was $1,727,910 in 1957 on $7,972,558 net income. This was less than 22 per cent compared with 52 per cent paid by other corporations.

The oil depletion allowance is one of the tax loopholes certain to come up for congressional scrutiny. And how the new Secretary of the Treasury feels about it is all-important to the oil moguls, including Bob Kerr. Kennedy would give no commitment to the oil industry during the campaign; so interesting to watch is whether Bob Kerr now drops his opposition to Secretary Dillon. If so, it means Kerr feels the new Secretary of the Treasury is a sound man.

Kennedy-Go-Round

President-elect Kennedy has been engrossed in a book that has a personal meaning for him: "Presidential Power" by Richard Neustadt. Kennedy has studied it intently, carefully underlining key passages. . . . The President-elect is amused over the number of Navy veterans who claim they served on the same PT boat with him during World War II. "That PT boat," he commented to friends, "is growing into the biggest battleship in the Navy." . . . The Navy made overtures through papa Joe Kennedy to persuade son Jack to retain Ike's secretary of defense, Tom Gates, who used to be secretary of the Navy. . . . In telling friends about the Navy's sleeper play, the President-elect remarked pointedly that his "old man" wasn't going to dictate his appointments. Instead, he took the advice of ex-Secretary of Defense Robert Lovett, too sick to return to government service himself, who recommended Robert McNamara for the job.

Panama Escapes Dollar Crackdown

President Eisenhower has quietly exempted Panama from his order directing the armed forces not to purchase foreign goods.

The idea was to slow down the escape of dollars from the United States. But it almost caused a revolution in Panama whose economic and political stability is based upon U.S. expenditures.

Florida's handsome Sen. George Smathers, Kennedy's golfing partner, learned that the presidential directive was about to have disastrous results in Panama.

He began making frantic calls around Washington, warning that the friendly Panamanian government might even be overthrown if the new policy were enforced. He also pointed out that it would violate a 1955 treaty with Panama.

The Defense Department agreed. Result: The presidential order was withdrawn so far as Panama is concerned.

Best Dressed Man

President-elect Kennedy has settled the question on what he will wear on the day of his inauguration. He will wear a top hat, probably the silk hat he wore last June at the Harvard commencement, but his formal cutaway of oxford gray lambs wool is being tailored by the Kennedy tailor, H. Harris of New York. His waist-coat is pearl gray, double-breasted, and the trousers are medium gray worsted with black and darker gray stripes.

His shirt will be semi-dress with a four in hand gray tie. His socks and shoes will be black. If the weather is cold, he may wear a six months old black coat and gray gloves.

What a relief to the haberdashers and other retail men's shops to have the familiar bare headed senator decide on a topper and formal daytime costume. This will give the senators and other important dignitaries a chance to dust off their old cutaways and toppers or buy new ones.

It also settles the question on whether the Kennedy clan has their suits made in London. Their tailor lives in New York and his name is H. Harris. If they happen to buy a few suits in London, isn't that good for British-American relations?

Original Purpose

Sole purpose of the U.S. Public Health Service when it was first established in 1798 was to operate hospitals for American merchant seamen.

Botanically speaking, the cashew is not a true nut, but actually the fruit of the cashew tree.

My New Year's Resolution

Ah, New Year's resolutions,

I make them by the score,

I think of all the things I do

I won't do any more,

I make a list so very long,

I keep on adding to it;

No more am I finding fault,

I will not speak my mind,

I'm going to be considerate,

And always very kind;

When people do so many things

To rub me the wrong way

"I'm sure it's not intentional!"

That's what I'm going to say,

I'm going to straighten up my house

And keep it clean and neat,

I'm going to say to everyone

Things that are nice and sweet,

Count my pennies, don't you know,

I'm going to watch my charge accounts

And just not let them grow;

I'm going to do a lot of things,

I've got a real long list,

Of things I'll do or won't do,

There's nothing I have missed;

And when I look it over

With quite a lot of pride,

To be that kind of person

Makes me feel good inside,

But New Year's resolutions

Have a way of getting lost,

And I will buy the things I want

And just forget the cost

I'll say the things I shouldn't say,

And lose my temper, too,

I know I'll do like every year,

The things I shouldn't do,

But for a day or so, I guess,

I'll do the things I should

And that's as long as anyone

Can manage to be good,

For I've that human element,

Like everyone, I fear,

No no New Year's resolution

Could I keep for one whole year.

It's Your New Year

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.

Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

By this time, many of the newspapers of the nation have nominated "the man of the year." And you would have nominated? And why?

Whatever your reasons, it is obvious that we need men of superlative leadership. This new year demands men of clear vision, inteelligent patience, sterling integrity, persistent hopefulness and canny wisdom. We need men who can grip the imaginations of people and incarnate their best dreams.

When the great Pablo Casals played his cello, a reporter, held spellbound, afterward stated that

Casals seemed to embody the hopes of all who heard him. He was in himself that which they would want to be.

We need leaders who can do that for us.

So Joseph Fort Newton described the man of the year as one who was able:

"To work in the face of defeat,

to play in the face of failure,

to struggle in the face of indifference, to keep sweet and tolerant when bitterness and hatred are about you; to remain patient when a fierce restlessness is overtaking

you, to continue to try when you have failed these are the demonstrations of a great life—this is the measure of one's worth."

Such words are of increasing importance, for we have a tendency to give up. We've made many resolutions at the time of the New Year and have decided in ourselves that it's nonsense to attempt to be "the man of the year."

Shall we abandon our efforts to cure cancer because we have failed despite brilliant successes in controlling the dread disease?

Shall we scuttle the U.N. because there are still wars and rumors of wars?

Shall we quit wishing each other

Happy New Year, because our best hopes are too often rebuffed?

Views Differ In Business For Year '60

By WILLIAM FERRIS

AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—It all dependent upon how you looked at it.

One businessman said: "It's an average business year—in fact,

the best average year we've ever had."

Yet another said: "It's the poorest boom on record."

If nothing else, it was the year

when many an illusion faded,

many a prediction proved absurd.

The hard truth is it was the Year of Disappointment.

It started wonderfully. Around

midyear discerning individuals saw scattered weaknesses. As the year ended many commentators

dared to say "recession" right out loud.

Others, stifled by semantics, called it "rolling readjustment,"

"mild slowdown," "high-level stag-nation" and similar euphemisms.

No one any longer called it a

"boom."

Newsprint production reached an all-time high. Retail and foreign trade rang up record volume.

Electric output hit a new peak.

Personal income set a new top.

Gross national product was at an historic peak.

But trouble existed in the capital goods and semidurable goods industries. It provoked a disturbing question. Had the economy expanded to where its capacity to produce exceeded the demand of a normal year?

Steel ran at around 50 per cent of capacity in the last half year.

Builders put up fewer houses, and the housing market slowed. Farm income dropped to $11 billion compared with a post war peak of $17

billion. Major appliance markets were glutted. The textile industry slackened, partly because of foreign imports. Idle crude capacity in the oil industry was in excess of three million barrels a day.

Financially, stocks declined and bonds advanced. The government adopted an easy-money policy.

Exports exceeded imports, but there was a balance-of-payments deficit of $4 billion. American business moved abroad.

In Europe the music hall comedians joked about the hungry well-heeled American commercial travelers, representing U.S. business, seeking sites, plants or companies on the continent.

In Asia an official of one country said: "We really don't have any economic problems yet. You see, we don't have an economy.

It's all American aid."

matter of FACT

The Greeks didn't "fake" when they wrestled. In the type of wrestling called "pancratium" few holds were barred. Wrestlers could hit, kick, twist limbs, struggle on the ground, and even strangle. Just two things were forbidden: biting and gouging.

The Doctor's Mailbag

Young Teacher Exemplifies 'Eleventh Commandment'

By Harold Thomas Hyman, M.D.

Some time back, I passed on to you the late Gene Fowler's recommendation to add the admonition "Thou shalt not quit" to the already existing Ten Commandments.

As an inspiring example of the newly suggested "eleventh commandment," C. Raymond Long of the Elgin, Ill., Daily Courier-News has thoughtfully sent me the following intelligence from Palatine, Ill.

Miss Barbara Winters, who has been blind since birth, has just begun her teaching career at the age of 23. Voted one of the outstanding members of her graduating class at Illinois State Normal University, she was hired by the school system of Palatine, a community of 10,000 population, north-east of Elgin.

When she met her junior high school pupils for the first time in their English and social science course, Barbara asked her class to cooperate with her in some special ways.

"There will be things I ought to know about this room—that a light bulb is burned out or something else is not right—that I will need you to tell me," she said.

"And if you want to attract my attention to answer or ask a question, please call my name instead of raising your hands."

What pleased me almost as much as her achievement was the statement made by superintendent Marian Jordan, who was responsible for obtaining the appointment for the young teacher.

"I was more impressed by her talents than her handicaps," was the way Jordan explained her preference.

I would like to call Miss Jordan's statement to the attention of all who have an opportunity to give employment to the handicapped.

I am willing to wager that employers will discover as will the pupils of the Palatine Junior High School, that weighing the candidate's talents, rather than handicaps, will prove more than a humanitarian application of the Golden Rule.

Because of the unusual efforts that are usually expended by those of the handicapped who struggle to maintain their independence and self respect, the good deed of giving them employment usually proves one from which the donor stands to profit even more than the recipient.

The Meaning of New Year's Day

By Joe Breig, Editor of the Cleveland Universe-Bulletin

The blood of Jesus was shed for the first time not in hatred but in love. It was shed gently, not cruelly; religiously, not ir-religious; virtuously, not viciously, and in adoration of God and obedience to Him, rather than in blind cursing blasphemy.

This is something to meditate on, and be thankful for, and maybe even to boast about humbly, on New Year's Day, which is, far more importantly, the feast of the Circumcision of Christ.

It is said that St. Joseph was the minister of the circumcision. We ought to look at Joseph more often and more steadily than we do. We ought to draw him forth from the obscurity he chose for himself. And we ought to study and honor him, in order to learn from him. For he was a great man and a very great saint, and he was our priest in the first shedding of the blood of the Son of God for our salvation.

At first glance one might say that Joseph was an ordinary man. Joseph in fact was a man like the rest of us.

Two things, however, made him extraordinary—the work he was given by God to do, and the grace with which he cooperated in doing it. But those are the same things that make the rest of us extraordinary too; not as extraordinary as Joseph, but extraordinary all the same.

The office to which God appointed Joseph was nothing less than this—that he was to stand in the place of the Eternal Father of Christ on earth. In all but generation, he was Christ's father; for God chose to watch over Jesus through Joseph, and not directly.

But there is no one of us who is not appointed to some office of great importance in God's eyes. For most of us, the office is very like Joseph's. Into our hands is given the care of one or more of God's children.

We ought, therefore, to feel at home with Joseph. True, his holiness is towering. But towering holiness is not something frightening.

As 1961 leaves its launching pad, we hope that it zooms successfully into orbit, carrying a goodly "pay load" of out-of-this-world happiness for you and yours. May the New Year bring all your plans to fruition, all your wishes to fulfillment.

Bob Reveals How to Keep Youth, Vigor

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Someone once accused Bob Cummings of taking 800 vitamin pills a day. "It's not true," quipped Bob. "I only take 693."

But all joking aside, Cummings' youthful vitality has long been the envy of other men of his vintage. And now he has revealed his health secrets in a new book called "Stay Young and Vital."

He doesn't give his exact age except to say that it's over 50. Milton Berle recalls that Cummings was his straight man in 1927 and comments: "He was no kid then."

Cummings says that one of the best ways to prevent a seedy look in middle age is to eat seeds. He munches on sesame and sunflower seeds between meals—also peanuts and almonds.

Other Cummings' health tips: Add powdered skim milk, wheat germ and brewer's yeast to food and drink.

Eat liver—either calf, beef or chicken—at least three times a week.

Eat fruit whole—skins and all. That excludes pineapple, he adds. Cummings says he is no health faddist now, but was once. "Back in the days when I was Deanna Durbin's leading man years ago, my zeal surely exceeded my common sense. With another dedicated vegetarian I would march around the studio lot singing a devout vegetarian song which went like this:

"Roots, fruits and nuts, Muscle, speed and guts, We're the guys who eat no ham, We eat no beef, We eat no lamb— "We're vegetarians! Rah! Rah! Rah!"

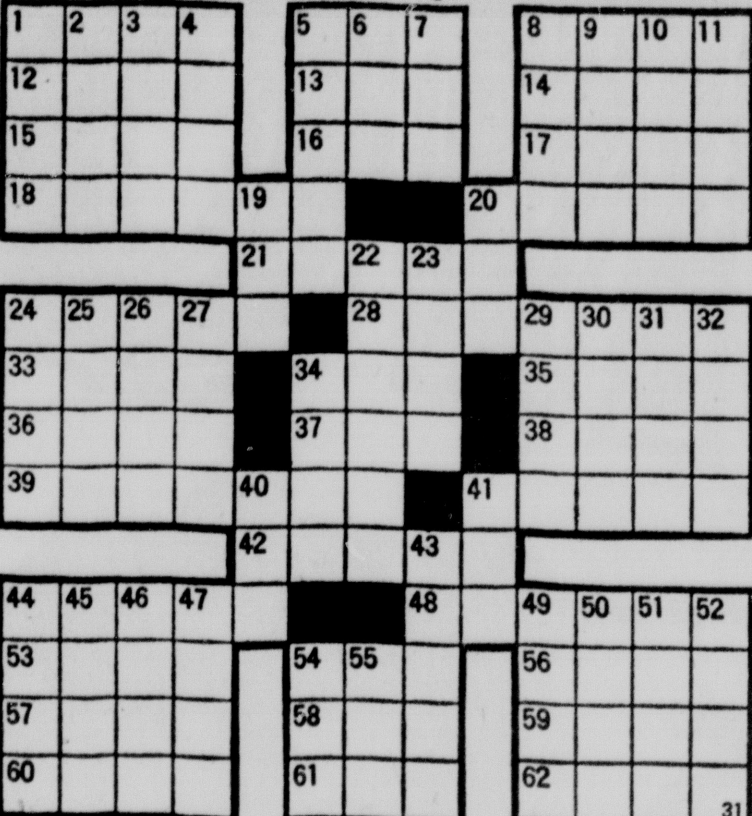

Greetings!

Happy Homemakers Of LaMonte Meet

The LaMonte Happy Homemakers met Wednesday with Mrs. John Little with eight members and one visitor, Mrs. Harry Brewer, who later became a member.

The meeting opened with the president, Mrs. P. Mothershed, reading a poem, "God's Way." The Christmas story was read by Mrs. C. Pippin and Christmas carols were sung.

The membership committee reported a new member for the year. Gifts were given to Mrs. George Workman, who was leaving the community. Christmas gifts were exchanged.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Charley Pippin in January.

Rigorous Journey

Traditionally, the devout Moslem journeying to Mecca must avoid quarrels with women, and maintain a sober mien. With the exception of sacrifices, he must kill no plant or animal save the five "nuisances": crow, kite, rat, scorpion or biting dog.
